What Time Is It? Beating the Moon. Sinkable Life Guards. Spiritual Gendarmerie.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

IN New York City on Thursday 10,240 Americans spent 5 cents each to ask "What time is it?" The telephone company had refused to answer that question, but decided to answer and charge a nickel. "The laborer is worthy of his hire."

This American indifference to 5 cents is a sign of prosperity, also foolish laziness in some cases.

Dealers in clocks and watches are invited to insert in this newspaper an advertisement to this effect: "Buy our clock—or watch—and you won't need to pay a nickel for the correct time."

BERT HASSELL and Parker Cramer finished in seven hours the first 800 miles of their journey from Illinois to Sweden, flying 110 miles an hour. That will seem a snail's pace to future generations.

MEN have already beaten the moon in its journey around the earth. The moon's trip takes a little more than 27 days. Fliers have made the trip in 23 days.

Beating the moon around the earth is one achievement. The next will be to TIE the sun in its apparent journey around the earth.

With machines flying 1,000 miles an hour, gentlemen wanting a prolonged sun bath, will be able to fly directly under the sun, following it around the earth for 24 hours or longer.

NEW YORK'S civil service commission investigated the qualities of life guards, hired by politicians to protect New York City's beaches. They were supposed to dash into the boiling surf and save the drowning.

It was found that of 163 guards 15 couldn't swim a stroke, 18 more refused to "risk the swimming test in the water." They thought it too dangerous.

In the words of Mr. Cook, of Los Angeles, imagine their embarrassment when any one cried "help."

There may be something in the statement that politicians are not fit to attend to any kind of business. In New York they certainly are not fit to select life guards.

IN MEXICO the Indians, a very large percentage of the population, are said to be "reverting to paganism, being deprived of priests."

Government restrictions and interference with religious exercises have caused "the lower classes to lose respect for the churches."

The Mexican law forbidding any but Mexicans to exercise priestly functions leaves large populations without religious guidance.

IT IS strange, in this country, to see two countries, so far apart as Russia and Mexico, experimenting in religious interference. The French did the same, even more drastically, after the Revolution.

But when Napoleon came to power he re-established the church and the salaries of the priesthood, saying, "I need a spiritual gendarmerie as well as a physical army."

Mexico and Russia may learn that they also need the co-operation of a "spiritual gendarmerie."

DISTRESSING news from the South tells of floods and damage to crops affecting four states.

Fortunately the South has developed great resources, financially, industrially and otherwise. Well-established powers of recuperation will soon eliminate the effects of a temporary setback.

WHEN a gasoline launch exploded in North Bay, Ontario, a priest, a man and wife and two children, were thrown into the water. All but the father perished.

With his two little children, one aged 2 years, one only a month old, in his arms, the father endeavored to swim to the shore a mile away.

But, exhausted, he was obliged to drop the children. He reached the shore alone.

IT WAS a noble effort. The only difference between a father and a mother in such a case is that THE MOTHER WOULD HAVE DIED WITH THE CHILDREN.

BRITISH railroads recognize in the motor bus a competitive peril and have reduced rates for week-end and round-trip day tickets as much as one-third, with more reductions to come.

WHAT will competition be when flying becomes thoroughly commercialized? Intelligent railroad men know that soon there will be no long-distance passenger travel by rail.

As for coast-to-coast travel, the railroad Pullman car will be extinct.

JENNIE FITZPATRICK

Jennie Fitzpatrick, 20, 5122 Carnegie street, of sober and smiling mien above, is free today on $5,000 bail as a result of her admittance to coroner's clerk and county detectives that she was driving the car that killed Mike Stefanick, 969 East Ohio street, near Etna, and put three other workmen in the hospital.

"CARESSED"

Joseph Brizzle, sitting beside her as she drove, caressed her, Miss Fitzpatrick told county detectives, and she did not see the men until the car crashed into them after she drove through a red light. Her bond is the largest ever asked of a woman in an automobile homicide case in this country. Brizzle is in jail in default of $5,000 bail. She is shown here accompanied by Deputy Coroner Samuel Shenkan.

7 Poisoned, Blame Fish

Tainted fish was believed by Pitsburgh Hospital physicians today to have been responsible for the illness of two mothers and five children living at 6521 Transit way, East End, who were seriously ill Friday night at the hospital.

Mrs. Helen Napolitano and her son, Robert, 9, were discharged from the hospital today. Mrs. Frances Patele, her three children, Joseph, 7, and Rose and Margaret, twins, 5, and Lena Neapolitano, 7, remained though their condition is serious.

Hospital physicians, after questioning the mothers, declared that symptoms indicated ptomaine poisoning from eating fish.

$450 STOLEN FROM TIRE COMPANY TILL

Thieves last night took $450 from a cash register in the office of the Iron City Tire Company, 5868 Baum boulevard, according to a report to city detectives today. The robbery was discovered when the place was opened today. Entrance was gained by forcing a rear window.

John Blackenberger, roomer at 709 Fifth avenue extension, reported to the police that $16 and his auto driver's license was stolen from his room during his absence.

TWO HURT IN CRASH: SEEK DRIVER OF CAR

County detectives are looking for Joseph Pugliese, of 206 Tenth street, Sharpsburg, said to be the owner of an automobile which last night struck and overturned a car driven by Raymond Jones, of 6633 Selwyn street, injuring two passengers. Alfred Proctor and Mrs. Emma Barry, of 6300 Forward avenue, riding in Jones' car, are in the Pittsburgh Hospital. Jones, with Miss Jean Barry and Vincent Hileman, two other passengers, escaped injury. The driver of Pugliese's car did not stop after the accident, according to Jones.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 18.—Earl Metzgar, 28, College Hill, is in Beaver Valley Hospital suffering from burns received yesterday when a gasoline truck caught fire at a service station.

CITY VOTES FOR SMITH KEEP HIM IN LEAD HERE

The rural vote in Allegheny county yesterday threw the bulk of its ballots in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's straw vote campaign to Hoover, giving him 145 to Smith's 129. However, so large a lead did the Democratic candidate run up in the city, that he still leads in the total figures, 1,658 to 1,470.

The rural vote yesterday was 126 to 93 in Hoover's favor, while the city vote was 36 to 19 in Smith's favor. As more and more rural votes come in, the Smith lead will be lowered, although the city sections are expected to bring the Smith advantage back again.

MANY WOMEN VOTE

In the total vote to date, as many women have voted for Hoover as men, but 910 men have voted for Smith against 748 women.

It was indicated that the present straw voters cast their official ballots four years ago in this fashion: For Coolidge, 1,928; for Davis, 202; for LaFollette, 540. And of the Coolidge vote, more women voted for him than men, but as for Davis and LaFollette, the men's vote was almost 3-to-2 against the women's vote.

Great changes are being chronicled in party affiliations, it is patent from the figures. Women are recorded as swinging to the Republican banner, while, particularly in the city, men are drifting to the Democratic standard. It is the most singular switch of old-line partisanship noted in many years.

RUSHING OUT CARDS

The double postal cards are being dispatched from The Sun-Telegraph office to registered voters and others entitled to vote, at the rate of thousands a day. Many people are waiting for Smith's speech of acceptance, although Hoover's speech stimulated the return of cards to a considerable extent.

NIGHT CLUB RAIDS HIT ELITE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—Scared stiff by the sharpest fangs prohibition has yet bared, numerous Park avenue fashionables who like their cocktails today were fleeing service of subpenas that would bring them before the Federal grand jury Monday. One hundred and twenty-five subpenas already have been served on society folk from the avenue, actresses, politicians and business and professional people.

This is the first time Uncle Sam has gone after patrons of damp night clubs along Broadway.

Government men are trying to round up guests of the 30-odd cabarets that were raided along the White Way the night that Gov.

Wheeling Plane Factory Set To Operate

ANTHONY H. G. Fokker, famous Dutch airplane designer, has established near Wheeling a new factory which will soon be turning out two huge $60,000 "ships" weekly. Equipped with three 400-horsepower engines, these planes will carry two pilots and 12 passengers.

Wheeling has just acquired a remarkable park, almost as big as Schenley and Highland Parks combined, which is being used to teach natural history, art and music. One can spend a week-end there, go on "nature walks" under the guidance of naturalists, hear a lecture and a concert, and get supper, lodging and breakfast for a total of $1.80.

These and other interesting things will be described in a page of news and pictures of Wheeling in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

LEAPS AT ACCUSER AT BANDIT HEARING

GIRL TELLS OF CARESS IN DEATH AUTO

Admitting that a man had his arms around her while she drove an automobile into five men at East Ohio street last Monday, killing one of them, Jennie Fitzpatrick, 20, of 512 Carnegie avenue, was held late yesterday under $5,000 bail pending the coroner's inquest.

Miss Fitzpatrick confessed, detectives said, that she was driving a machine owned by Joseph Brizle, 5203 Keystone street, the man whose caress is alleged to have been responsible for the mishap.

WAR ON "PETTERS"

War on front seat automobile petting parties, "one-arm" drivers and persons driving automobiles without license, was opened today by city and county police as the result of Miss Fitzpatrick's confession.

Miss Fitzpatrick was summoned to the coroner's office today to provide additional security for bail. The property stipulated on the bond of $5,000 given yesterday, the largest ever demanded of a woman in such a case, was declared by the coroner not to have a value of twice the amount of the bond, as required. After she had provided additional security through her attorney, she was released.

The Fitzpatrick girl is the third to kill a pedestrian this summer. In all cases the drivers held learners' permits only. Records at the coroner's office show that June 22 Mildred Benden, 17, Clugston avenue, Turtle Creek, struck and killed William Baglia, 7, R. F. D. No. 1 Wilkinsburg, while the boy was crossing Linhart road. August 6, Mildred Gosdonovic, 21, of 1804 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, struck and fatally injured Jefferson Stull, 54, of Coursin street, McKeesport. He died soon afterward.

The man killed by Brizle's car was Michael Stefanick, 21, 969 East Ohio street, O'Hara township. Miss

Bucs Eye 3rd Place

The second doubleheader in two days is scheduled for Forbes Field this afternoon. The Pirates won both end of a bargain bill with the Quakers yesterday and, needless to mention, the climbing Bushwhackers will play out every string to make a cleanup today.

The small gap that separates the fifth-place Pirates from the third-place Cubs is a rich incentive for victories at this time. The Bruins are only one and one-half games ahead of the Oaklanders.

If the home team can get into third place in the course of the next few days there's no telling what they might accomplish in the matter of overtaking the second-place Giants and the league-leading Cardinals.

Carmen Hill and Fred Fussell will work the double bill on the slab for the Buccos. The enemy is expected to counter with Ray Benge and Russell Miller.

'FRAMEUP,' HOLDUP SUSPECT CRIES

Rushing at Betty Colwell, 20, who is said to have tipped off police, George Schreiber, 25, alleged payroll bandit, tried to attack the girl in Central Police Court today, when he and three other suspects in the Ward Bakery Company and Pittsburgh Railways Company holdups were held for court.

"It's a frameup," shouted Schreiber, who lives at 1310 Arch street, as he sprang at the girl. "The whole business is a frameup."

Schreiber's rush was cut short by police court attaches. The girl testified that on the morning of the baking company robbery Schreiber had told her about the occurrence and said she had overheard the men discussing opportunities for holding up the office of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. After the four were held for court, the girl was turned over to the county detectives for further questioning.

CHARGES FRAMEUP

All four men entered denials of participation in the holdups before Magistrate John Orie at Central Police Court.

In the face of confessions said to have been obtained by the police and the identification of several of the men by their victims, the defendants declared the charges

22 Dancers Turn Detectives When Backers Flee

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The 22 marathon dancers of Coney Island's 629½-hour contest today turned sleuths seeking the whereabouts of backers, who, it is alleged, vanished while the shufflers were sleeping during a rest period.

In fact, the hottest time the stadium had seen was when the dancers learned the contest was off and the $10,000 prize money was not in sight.

Today they are hunting Sid Bernard and Leo Clifton, who had enrolled them in the contest.

HASSELL GOING TODAY

COCHRANE, Ont., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—With favorable weather reported over the greater part of the 1,600-mile route to Mt. Evans, Greenland, Bert Haskell and Parker Cramer planned to start at noon today, Eastern Standard time, on the second leg of their flight to Sweden.

Their monoplane, the Greater Rockford, completely overhauled during the aviators' forced stay here, was poised at the end of the runway ready for the takeoff.

The two airmen reached here in a rain storm Thursday from Rockford, Ill. Rain has fallen almost every hour since they landed, but today's dawn brought clear and cool weather.

Reports from Toronto indicated fair to partly cloudy weather with light to moderate winds over the first stretch of today's route to Mt. Evans. As the plane approaches the seaboard and Davis Strait, tail winds, north to northwest, were predicted.

The noon departure was planned to bring the plane to Greenland in daylight.

Driver Ordered to Pay Victim's Burial Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—William J. Horn, 25, whose automobile killed Theodore E. Smith, 79, has been ordered to pay the funeral expenses by Coroner Schwarz, who said he would not release Horn until they were paid, even if he had to sell Horn's car to do it.

Horn carried no liability insurance. He explained to the coroner "I can't afford it. I bought the car on the installment plan."

M'KENZIE BACK PEELING JAIL SPUDS

Refreshed by a day of freedom and a lot of publicity, Jack McKenzie, owner of Pittsburgh's most famous sore toe, was back in the county jail this morning, to resume his spud-peeling operations in the jail kitchen.

McKenzie, confessed vote-cheater, was granted a parole Thursday by Common Pleas Court Judge H. H. Rowand, only to have it revoked Friday when it developed that his story of an inflamed toe, following an injury to his foot in the jail kitchen, was nothing more than an ingrowing nail.

It was also developed at the hearing that McKenzie gave a false address in obtaining his parole and that, after being granted his freedom, he returned to the jail for personal belongings under the influence of liquor. He must serve two months and 22 days, the time remaining on his jail sentence of six months.

In revoking the parole Judge Rowand remarked that McKenzie had misrepresented the facts to the court and to his attorney, Congressman Harry A. Estp. The latter said he had based his plea for a parole on the fact that McKenzie was a first offender, was the support of an aged mother and had served more than half of his six-month sentence. Estep expressed disgust because McKenzie had unnecessarily, as he put it, made the statement to the court about his toe.

With the recommitment of McKenzie, there are four prisoners serving sentences for election frauds. McKenzie is completing a six-month sentence; Capt. Charles Golden is serving a year; Jacob Stein, seven months, and William Bollister, nine months.

Seven other vote fraud convicts have served their terms and been released.

One hundred and ninety-one cases growing out of the primary election cheating have been disposed of. This includes 12 cases in which the grand jury ignored the charges. Most of the accused pleaded guilty and were paroled; some were required to pay fines, in addition.

Eighteen have not yet been sentenced. Ten made a motion through their attorney, Rody P. Marshall, for a new trial. Mr. Marshall's death has delayed action.

There remain untri[illegible] cases, the defendants being the members of eight election boards indicted by the June grand jury.

WALSH UP ON SMITH WAGON

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—The banner of the veteran senatorial investigator, Tom Walsh, of Montana, flown for a time on a separate standard in last summer's battle for the Democratic presidential nomination, was hoisted higher than ever today in the camp of Gov. Smith.

Walsh came to town yesterday to get better acquainted with the man he opposed for a time in the preconvention struggle and to talk over the political situation in general. He had not been in conference an hour at the executive mansion before he prepared a two fisted attack against the Republican standard bearer, assailed one of his former Democratic senatorial colleagues for bolting his party, and praised Gov. Smith as a man who would introduce a "human element" at Washington.

Like Gov. Smith, the Montana Senator is a Catholic but an ardent dry. In his fight for the nomination he had the support of William G. McAdoo, Gov. Smith's famous rival at the Madison Square Garden convention four years ago, but after his failure in the California primaries he withdrew in favor of the New York Governor.

In his statement, Walsh said that the election of Gov. Smith "Would introduce into our national councils something of the human element sadly lacking under the regime of Coolidge and Mellon."

"I believe," he added, "that a Republican struck a responsive chord when he said he was going to vote for Smith because he wanted to see a smile in the White House."

He and the Democratic nominee were not in agreement on some questions "widely considered," Walsh said, but he thought "it vain to look for a candidate with convictions representing millions of voters who likewise have convictions and agreeing with them all on all questions."

The most that can be hoped for, he believes, is "that he shall be with them on fundamentals—that on the whole he shall be found more satisfactory to them than his opponent."

After praising the Governor's geniality as "irresistible" and his intellectual processes as "refreshingly clear," Walsh directed a bitter attack against the Republican presidential candidate and the Democratic bolter without mentioning their names.

ONTARIO DECISION HOLDS RUM TRADE TO U. S. ILLEGAL

WINDSOR, Ontario, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—County Magistrate W. A. Smith, in a sweeping ruling yesterday, held that all liquor export business to the United States is illegal under Canadian law.

The ruling was handed down in the case of Ward Irey, of Wyandotte, Mich., whom the court found guilty of possessing liquor without a permit.

Irey, a former policeman, was picked up two months ago in a boat on the Detroit River by provincial police with several cases of beer destined for the United States. He pleaded the privileges of a common carrier engaged in export.

Magistrate Smith held that common carriers, supposed to deliver their cargoes safely to the consignee and without contravention of law at the point of delivery, could only handle liquor cargoes for the United States illegally and that such boats and cargoes were liable to seizure and confiscation.

The court further ruled that exporters who had stocks of liquor stored and under their control were guilty of having such liquor illegally under the Ontario liquor control act, and that all sales "over the dock" made by exporters from stored stocks were illegal, whether destined for the United States or not.

The magistrate ordered that Irey's boat be confiscated and that he be fined $200.

CARESS IS CAUSE OF KILLING

Fitzpatrick told the coroner she was not aware the machine had hit anyone until a few moments after the accident.

Although admitting Brizle had caressed her while driving the car, she became indignant over reference to the incident as a "petting party."

Brizle is held in jail under bail, pending the inquest.

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh asserted that he would reissue a police order today instructing policemen to arrest every motorist found petting while driving an automobile. A charge of reckless driving will be placed against the offenders. A forfeit of $50 will be required for release.

"Front seat petters should be sent to the workhouse and their licenses revoked," said the superintendent.

Acting Chief of County Detectives Harry Cochran also made a move to stop petting parties. Detectives were ordered to take such drivers to the nearest justice of the peace office.

"Every person arrested for killing a pedestrian will be held under the highest possible bail," Coroner McGregor said. "I am opposed to petting, it has become a menace and a peril, it should be stopped."

2 Robber Suspects Nabbed

With the arrest of two burglar suspects early today, East End police believe they have captured the two prowlers that have been responsible for numerous robberies in the East End district lately. The prisoners are C. B. Nelly, 18, of 1917 Chislett street, and Albert Gross, 17, of 1924 Chislett street.

Detectives Harry Scott and Jerry Deasy arrested the pair early today in Washington boulevard, where they were found seated in a parked automobile. The detectives say they found a kit of burglar tools in the machine and that the youths were unable to give an account of themselves. They will be given a "standup" today at the detective bureau.

HUSBAND FIRES AT WIFE, SHOOTS WRONG WOMAN

An innocent victim of a domestic quarrel, police say, Mrs. Julia Urban, of 205 South Fifth avenue, Duquesne, lies in a critical condition in the McKeesport Hospital, a bullet wound near the heart. She was shot, police say, by John Kovach, 35, a millworker, who fired at his wife but accidentally shot down Mrs. Urban. The injured woman and her four children reside in the Kovach home.

Kovach fled from the house when he saw what had occurred. An hour later he walked into the Hazelwood police station and gave himself up. He was turned over to Duquesne police, who returned him to that city.

According to Chief of Police P. J. Flynn of Duquesne, Kovach has been drinking for several days and has been terrorizing his family continually. At the hospital it was said there is little hope for the victim's recovery.

against were the result of a "frame-up."

Sylvester Mantz, 23, of Forty-third street, identified by Edward LeGoullon, of the Ward Baking Company, as one of the men who slugged him and escaped with a $17,000 payroll on April 2 last, created a scene in the courtroom when he declared to Magistrate Orie:

"I don't know a thing about the robbery. I was forced by the detectives to tell all this stuff."

ONE ADMITS GUILT

John Otis, 24, of 136 Long way, admitted he had participated in the Ward robbery and that it had been planned in advance, but suddenly became silent and gave no further testimony. William ("Tug") Murphy, 44, of 145 Thirty-eighth street, declared he was an innocent victim and had never seen Otis and Mantz until he was arrested.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over the Ohio Valley states yesterday morning is now over the St. Lawrence Valley, but there is still a trough formation extending southwestward from the disturbance to a center over Oklahoma. As a result of this low pressure there is a general cloudy condition over the country east of the Mississippi River, and rain is falling at scattered places. Light showers and in some places thunderstorms occurred over most of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. The rains were light except at Philadelphia, where 1.60 inches fell.

River Conditions.

The weather is moderately cool over the Plain States and eastward to Ohio.

There was a slight rise in the Monongahela river, but the Allegheny is falling, and the Ohio practically stationary. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.6 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.1, and Dam No. 6, 7.6 feet. The Ohio will remain about stationary, or rise a few tenths of a foot. The dams are up.

NIGHT CLUB RAIDS HIT ELITE

Smith was named Democratic presidential candidate.

The first stage of that drive was completed when managers, waiters, owners and employes in the clubs were indicted.

What can be done to those who merely drink in the joy palace?

Not much—merely a two-year jail sentence.

Thus it was that steamship lines reported a rush of orders for reservations.

Rich and socially prominent night club habitues professed a desire to start at once for Europe, Australia, Asia, New Zealand or any far clime—any distant port in a dry storm.

It was learned that Federal men are trying to serve papers on 500 more men and women.

Simultaneously with this new departure in the prohibition campaign against Broadway came an innovation in customs service procedure. When the French liner Ile de France—most modern queen of the seas—sailed, guards stood at the exit gates of the pier, slapping the pockets of the 4,000 males who bade bon voyage to departing friends.

Not a single bottle was said to have been discovered.

Never before have customs men subjected ship's visitors to search. In answer to protests, the uniformed coterie said: "Orders from Washington."

Process servers, dismayed by the impending exodus of their prey, admitted that many they sought have been reported absent on vacations at summering places out of the country.

Police believe Ford came in contact with an electric wire. He was employed at the bakeshop as a fireman.

KELLOGG SAILS TO SIGN PEACE PACT

From 290 to 190 -:- Sleuth's Diet Story -:- Takes Six Months

HOW HE LOOKED

Six months ago Myer Rubenstein weighed 290 pounds. Today he weighs 190. How did he do it?

—HE PRACTICED WHAT HE NOW PREACHES—

HOW HE LOST IT

For nine years "Ruby" was house detective at the Fort Pitt Hotel, an occupation which doesn't make for slimness. And he liked to eat, a trait common to sleuths. Then he grew tired of climbing stairs and bumping into persons while turning corners. He turned from white to all-wheat bread, cut out butter and sweets and had his steaks and bacon broiled, not fried. Weekly he walked from East End to downtown and return. And what happened? Instead of the ponderous form that was once "Ruby," there now strolls the trim, straight figure of an alert young man. That young man now is able, as the picture shows, to show other portly victims the same exercises which, with a steady diet, enables him to shed flesh.

AND NOW!

Myer Rubenstein as he is today—a far cry from the rotund Myer of six months ago.

KELLOGG OFF FOR PARIS TO SIGN PEACE PACT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary Kellogg was on the high seas today, bound for Paris, where the multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war, in the formulation of which he took a leading part, is to be signed on August 27.

Accompanied by Mrs. Kellogg and three state department aides, the Cabinet officer sailed from New York late last night on the French steamship Isle de France. Among his fellow passengers was W. L. MacKenzie King, premier of Canada, who will sign the treaty on behalf of his government.

Mr. Kellogg and his party were met at the dock by Felix Laschen, assistant director of passenger traffic for the French line, and by Capt. Joseph Blancart of the Isle de France. After au exchange of greetings, the secretary was shown to his quarters and then posed under Kleig lights on the promenade deck.

"Everything I have to say," he told reporters, "has been stated. I am delighted to be on my way on the ocean to consummate this most important service of the nation to peace."

STARTED BY FRANCE

The new Peace treaty arose originally from a suggestion by Foreign Minister Briand of France, that the Washington and Paris governments enter into a pact outlawing recourse to war in their dealings with each other. Mr. Kellogg replied with a proposal that the treaty be thrown open to other nations and conducted negotiations to that end, with the result that the pact, after revisions in text to meet the objections of France and Great Britian, has met the acceptance of 14 nations. All the states that were invited to become orignal signatories. After ratification it will be open to adherence by any nation in the world.

Under the pact, the signatory states would renounce warfare as an instrument of national policy and bind themselves to use only pacific means in the settlement of whatever disputes or differences should arise among them, regardless of their nature or origin.

ONE WIFE FREES LYON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18—(AP.)—Mrs. Erma Meier Lyon was granted an annulment in the Superior Court here yesterday of her marriage to Capt. Harry Lyon, Jr., navigator of the airplane Southern Cross. Lyon is en route to Paris Hill, Me., to greet another wife, Mrs. Jane Lyon.

Sylvester J. McAtee, attorney representing Mrs. Lyon, testified that Lyon admitted in San Francisco six weeks ago that his first wife was living and that there never had been a divorce.

Lyon en route to Paris Hill denied he was the husband of the San Francisco woman. His mother and his wife, Mrs. Jane Lyon, joined in declaring at Paris Hill that Mrs. Erma Meier never had been Lyon's wife.

But marriage license records here bore out the woman's claim and she was granted an annulment.

"GIL" ROBINSON, CIRCUS VETERAN, SHOWMAN, DIES

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Gilbert James Robinson, the congenial showman who used to sell tickets, dispense concessions and superintend the care of animals for the famous circus troupe that bore his family name, is dead at his home here in his eighty-fourth year.

Robinson left behind him the memoirs of one of the most familiar figures of the show world in his day. He had taken to authorship after his retirement from the big top some years ago, had written one book on the history of the circus in the United States and had all but completed another when death intervened.

The youngest son of John G. Robinson, who founded the show, was born in the environment of sawdust rings, of swinging acrobats and daring bareback riders. He was reared in the same environment, learned the business which John G., finally relinquished to his sons and remained with it until he was prompted to retire and settle here.

Like the general handy man that he was, Filbert learned the whole bag of tricks and he probably performed more functions than any other person in the troupe.

He arranged the lot rentals and awarded the concessions in advance. When the outfit had reached its destination and, in the midst of the curious on-lookers, the animals under his care had been unloaded, "Gil" scanned the sky, sniffed the air and took stock of the weather. In fact the whole outfit depended on him entirely for that. If he said "up with the big top" the big top went up. Or, if he had a fear that the wind might wreck the great canvas canopy he advised against raising it and his advice was followed.

But once the good natured Gilbert was outwitted by the elements and a storm of sizeable proportions blew up. The wind tore down the tent in which the animals were sheltered and the frightened menagerie, led by an elephant, started from under the fallen canvas to stampede the circus grounds. Robinson went after the herd. Waving an umbrella in the face of the elephant that was leading the pack, he brought them to a halt and quieted them.

Years after when his advancing age had brought him here to seek a home, he visited a training school for circus riders in Cincinnati. He noticed that the pupils were saved from many a fall by a swinging arm or crane with a rope attached, which maneuvered over the horses.

He looked at the contraption in disgust and remarked:

"My old man made us ride without a contrivance of that sort. And he had boards laid all over the ring so that we would know it when we fell."

MISSING PITTSBURGH BOY FOUND BY MOTHER

He started for Wyoming with only $1.50, but landed on a farm near Finleyville, and was brought to the Juvenile detention rooms. He seemed overjoyed when his mother came here to get him.

GATHER TO NOTIFY CURTIS

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—The imposing statehouse, standing in a spacious park of this city in the richly laden farm lands, was the mecca of Republicans today Here late in the afternoon Senator Charles Curtis, son of Topeka and for a third of a century a public servant of this state, will be formally notified of his nomination by the Republican party for Vice President.

Smiling and jovial, Senator Curtis was about the city early greeting some of the incoming hosts. On all trains and on all roads they came, party leaders, official members of the notification committee—one from each state—but mostly old friends of the senator.

IN CONGRESS 38 YEARS

For 38 years Senator Curtis has represented Kansas in Congress, 14 years in the House and the remainder of the time in the Senate, where he has ruled for the past three years as the leader of his party, the majority group. Now he has brought Kansas its first vice presidential candidate, and the state jealously is vieing today with national party leaders in the celebration to him.

From every lamp post and across every principal thoroughfare hung flags, bunting, party insignia and the picture of Curtis. For several days Topeka has been in gala attire and intermittent rains of the last few days have done little damage. Overnight a huge picture of Herbert Hoover, the party's presidential nominee, had taken its place alongside one of similar proportions of Senator Curtis in front of the speakers' stand on the south side of the state house.

PARTY LEADERS ATTEND

National party leaders, headed by Chairman Work of the Republican National Committee, who called enroute home from the notification exercises a week ago in California for Herbert Hoover, eagerly compared notes on the national political situation during the morning hours, but the Kansans who were coming in by all highways, from the bumper harvest fields, the stores and business houses, were mostly interested in the celebration for "Charlie" Curtis, as they call him.

Then, too, there was some Indians. They claim Curtis. His grandmother on his maternal side was Julie Pappin, daughter of White Plume, chief of the Kaws. In full regalia some braves of the Pottawatomies came in from a nearby reservation to dance their eagle dance. And there were some of the Civil War veterans who had fought under Capt. O. A. Curtis, father of the Senator. Capt. Curtis was a native of Indiana, the son of English forbears. He married Ellen Pappin.

FLOOD DEATH TOLL 11; DAMAGE, MILLIONS

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Eleven lives and several millions of dollars damage stood as the cost of this week's storms and floods in five southeastern states today as the flood waters drained toward the sea, and cities, towns and communities emerged from isolation.

Ruin from racing waters stretched through the valleys of streams from Northern Virginia to the Lake Okeechobee district of Florida. All of the dead except one were inhabitants of the Carolinas or Virginia. One man was killed in Georgia.

Crops, highways and railways suffered the most extensive damage, although property losses were severe in some sections as a result of cyclonic winds and inundations. Thousands of acres of growing crops virtually were destroyed and additional destruction was expected before the waters have passed off.

Ashville (N. C.) tourist center, was among the cities isolated by the flood, but quickly re-established communications. Railway service has been completely restored and work on patching damaged highways progressing swiftly.

DANGER AT TWO POINTS

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—With two notable exceptions, a general recession of flood waters was reported today throughout Virginia and the Carolinas. At Columbia, S. C., where the Broad and Saluda Rivers converge to form the Congaree a record high water mark was looked for, while the James River was rising steadily above Richmond, with the crest expected to reach the city by nightfall.

The Congaree early today stood within a few inches of the record high water mark of 35.8 feet established in 1908, and it was expected that the record would be surpassed as the crest of the broad river, which yesterday swept away a part of a power dam at Lockhart, passed into the main stream.

TRAIN MAROONED

Several bridges have been carried away on the Broad River, live stock in inundated river bottom farms was reported to have been killed in large numbers and a passenger train was marooned at Strother with water covering the tracks both before and behind it. Two hundred passengers were taken to Winnsboro by automobile. Engineers at Lockhart reported last last night that a recession had been noted in the stream there.

HIT-SKIP DRIVER HELD IN DEATH OF MINER

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 18.—George Palusko, 22, of South Fork, was arrested by Portage police as the hit-and-run driver who killed Steve Chissel, 30, miner, on Wednesday night, had confessed, police say. Two girls, who were riding with Palusko, testified that he refused to stop the car despite their appeals. Palusko's father was killed about a year ago by an automobile at South Fork.

Jobless, Jailed for Taxes

Kelley Bell, 26, a jobless Negro of North Versailles, who is in the county jail because he could not pay county taxes, will be interviewed today by Judge Elder Marshall, who yesterday received a note from the prisoner in which Bell promised to pay the taxes if he could get a job and first support his family.

With a wife and five children to care for and no job in sight, Bell was unable to pay his school, road and county taxes for 1925 and 1926. Yesterday the borough tax collector and a representative of the clerk of courts office committed him to jail and he then sent the note to Warden John McNeil, who in turn gave it to Judge Marshall.

BURLINGAME, Cal., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Charles A. Lindbergh, in San Francisco on business for the transcontinental Airways, Inc., last night returned to the home of Thomas B. Eastland here, after a busy day in his San Francisco office.

Persistent reports that Lindbergh had been killed were denied by Eastland, who said Lindbergh had stepped out of the house at 7:15 o'clock after returning there at the end of his day's work.

Lindbergh is entirely all right. I've seen him within 10 minutes," said Eastland.

Lindbergh made no flight yesterday.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Harold Lloyd Seeks Heroine With Good Voice, Indicating His New Film Will Be "Talkie"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.

AFTER much careful story preparation made necessary by the advent of sound pictures, Harold Lloyd is all set to start on his latest fun film on September 4. This will be exactly five years after he began his first independent production, "Girl Shy."

The new story, yet untitled, is laid in San Francisco's Chinatown. There is a well developed mystery element, and plenty of opportunity for the synchronization of sound, as well as dialog. Lloyd hasn't stated that there will be dialog, but it is known that his leading lady will be selected for voice, as well as appearance and ability. And this fact speaks for itself—as will the picture.

Harold's role is that of the son of a San Francisco cop. Instead of following in father's footsteps, however, the boy is more interested in plants and flowers, the "plants" not being the kind with which the police are said to be familiar. The opening sequences will be filmed in San Francisco's city lockup. Another boost for California!

Edmund Lowe has been selected to star in Fox's first feature length "yellie." It is "Behing That Curtain," which is scheduled as a Raoul Walsh production. It is highly probable that Lilyan Tashman, Eddie's clever wife, will be prominently cast in the picture. When she is, it will be the second time the couple has worked together. Lilyan was the heavy woman in "Happiness Ahead," in which Eddie was the hero. Both players have had extensive stage experience.

Gus Edwards is deserting his beloved Broadway for Hollywood and a Metro contract. Gus will have charge of staging musical sound numbers which will extensively spice the Metro short-subject program. Edwards has made at least one worthwile contribution to the screen during the past, for he is the "discoverer" of a child called "Cuddles Edwards." And "Cuddles" grew up to be Lila Lee. Van and Schenck, the "pennant winning battery of songland," have also been signed for Metro sound shorts.

Ann Rork, daughter of Producer Sam Rork, is to have the leading feminine role in the stage play, "Dracula." Later in the season Ann will appear opposite Guy Bates Post in "The Play's the Thing," also on the stage.

William C. De Mille has been courteous enough to fulfill the recent prophecy of his marriage by wedding Clara Beranger, the distinguished scenarist, the knot being most romantically tied aboard a train speeding from Albuquerque to Hollywood. The great director, now under Paramount contract to take care of sound pictures, met his bride as the train pulled into the New Mexican city and the ceremony was performed. Miss Beranger is a New York girl, as was Miss Anna George, who was the first Mrs. De Mille.

"Our Gang" is in Chicago playing the first seven weeks of personal appearances. How would you like to be the chap who chaperons them? Ray Coffin, of the Roach studios, has been assigned to the task and hopes to live through it.

The final title of the western epic for which Marie Prevost and Ben Lyon have been retained as stars will probably be "The Exodus." As you know, the story deals with the great Mormon hegira from Illinois to Utah.

Of course it doesn't necessarily mean that Charlie Farrell and Virginia Valli are going to marry, but nevertheless, Charlie is building a magnificent new home with Richard Arlen and Jobyna Ralston as his neighbors, and the house seems far too large for just one boy.

CHANGE MADE IN CAST

Allan Langdon Martin's play "Smilin' Through," with Marguerite Merrill in the leading role, will be presented by the Nixon Players in the Nixon next week. Because of illness Ann Harding will not appear.

"Upstairs and Down," scheduled for presentation by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week, two distinct classes are represented—the idle rich and their servants. The authors are Frederick and Fanny Hatton. It deals with the fads and foibles of the rich and with modes and morals of the servant.

Joseph Santley is the producer of the Loew-Publix stage presentation, "Babes on Broadway," which will be in the Penn next week. The screen attraction is to be "Forbidden Hours," which stars Ramon Novarro, with Renee Adoree in the leading feminine role.

Thomas Meighan in "The Racket" is the photoplay attraction announced for the Stanley next week. Marie Prevost has the chief supporting role. Louis Wolheim, George Stone, John Darrow, "Skeets" Gallagher, Burr McIntosh and Lucian Prival are in the cast.

"The Big Noise," a Ben Hecht comedy, featuring Chester Conklin, is announced for showing in the Grand next week.

"The Bohemians," a burlesque will open the season in the Academy with a midnight show Sunday. It features Art Mayer and Frankie Moore.

Chief Caupolican, Indian baritone, will be the vaudeville feature in the Sheridan Square, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Eve Southern, in "Clothes Make the Woman," will be the screen feature.

Vaudeville feature in the Harris the first three days of next week will be the Mahon and Scott Revue, a sextet of singers, dancers and comedians. On the screen will be "Clothes Make the Woman."

CONTRACT LET FOR HARRIS HOUSE

D. A. Harris, president of the Harris Amusement Company, yesterday let to Blair and Mack, of McKeesport, the contract for the erection of a new theater at Fifth avenue and Market street, McKeesport. The contract price is in excess of $500,000. It will be rushed to completion within a period of eight months.

The site on which the theater is to be erected is one of the most valuable in McKeesport, and when completed, the new playhouse will represent assets of more than $1,000,000. Of the "atmopheric" type, it will be the first theater of its character in the state. In Chicago and California the major moving picture theaters belong to the atmospheric type, but they are an innovation in this part of the country.

In an atmospheric theater the auditorium represents an outside scene. For ceiling there is a blue sky with fleecy, floating clouds, rising and sinking moon and the whole atmosphere of the open. Birds on the wing appear in the heavens. There are real trees and painted trees, Spanish streets and picturesque buildings, all giving the atmosphere of the old world of medieval times in the open. Everything about the interior of the theater will be in keeping with the Spanish motif.

There will be 2,500 seats and a system of ventilation which gives pure, cool air without chill all the time.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PALE HANDS

"PALE hands I love—" sang the lyric tenor; and Lucy Gray, carried away by the spell of the music and the virile beauty of the black-haired hero, pressed her own roughened hands together, and was for the moment transported to the moonlight-drenched garden, a heroine of romance. But not for long.

Directly after the matinee, she hurried homeward, stopping at the grocery for canned pineapple and a pound of coffee for dinner. The romantic dreamer had perforce become an efficient housewife. Her rare holiday was over.

But later that evening, after the dinner dishes had been cleared away, the kitchen and dining room straightened, and little Janie bathed and put to bed, Lucy became conscious of a rising tide of rebellion against life, and particularly against Ted.

She glanced at him irritably, sprawled comfortably in his morris chair, across the table from her. He was smoking, as usual, and the ash tray by his side was half filled with cigaret stubs—also as usual. Why couldn't Ted talk to her while she worked! It was bad enough to slave continually, but with it all, must she suffffer loneliness?

"Been very busy today?" she asked casually.

"M—m," and Ted flicked the ash from his cigaret, missing the receiver, and scattering a rain of gray dust on the freshly swept carpet.

"Selfish beast!" thought Lucy hotly.

She continued her sewing, with painstaking stitches mending a tear in Janie's best frock. This finished, she sat idle, her eyes fixed at first unseeingly, then with sharp attention on her hands, which lay relaxed in her lap. Well shaped hands, once white and soft, with long fingers, and almond-shaped nails, formerly her chief pride.

Lucy's lips tightened as she noted the dull, darkened nails, cut conveniently short. Shuddering, she rubbed rough finger tips across the other hand. Stains from peeling vegetables — callouses from sweeping. The roughness meant too much dishwashing and cleaning, with no time to apply cold cream afterwards. Suddenly, Lucy Gray's work-stained hands symbolied the drabness of her existence.

Once life had been fair, with glowing promises. Ted's love, she had believed, would be the alchemy which would transmute the dross of drudgery into the gold of willing service. But Ted—again she glanced at him, half dozing in his chair.

Of course she knew he loved her—but every woman wants to occasionally hear the golden words from the one to whom she has given her all.

"Pale hands I love—"

Abruptly she rose. "I'm going to bed. I'm worn out."

Ted yawned. "S'm I. Had a mighty hard day." He placed his arm around her shoulders in a friendly gesture as they entered their bedroom, but that, too, was habit.

Lucy made her usual Saturday rounds. Lamb for a stew. "Now be sure and send me good measure, Mr. Jones." Potatoes, onions, gelatine for the tomato aspic, lettuce, mayonnaise.

Mentally repeating the items over and over like beads of a rosary, Lucy went from stall to stall in the market. "No, that celery is tough; I'll try somewhere else." But through it all, like the silver cord on which beads are strung, ran the refrain, "Pale hands I love." New home—the preparation for dinner—the endless round—she must hurry!

Across the street she darted, not noticing whether the traffic signal showed red or green. A frenzied honk of an automobile horn, a frantic shout of warning, something bearing down on her, crushing her—her last conscious thought was surprise at the stark horror on the face of the driver, and hope that the cream puffs would not be smashed.

Hours later, she awakened to the pungent odor of ether, to far-off whispering, and presently to the consciousness that her right hand was closely held between warm, firm ones. Then pain searing across her back like lightning across a dark sky!

"O—oh," she gasped. At once she felt cool lips against her hot cheek. "Darling, Ted's here," came a husky whisper.

"Drink this," a tube was inserted between her lips, and a crisp voice, a trained nurse's voice, spoke authoritatively. Wearily Lucy opened her eyes. A small, shadowy room—a strange room—a strange voice with blurred face, a white cap and apron—but Ted's hands holding hers, and Ted's voice murmuring tender, incoherent reassurances.

Days merged into weeks, and weeks became months. Lucy lay, quiet and passive, in the shadowy room, the blurred face under the white cap hovering near, thinking for her. And Ted's hands, warm, insistent, clasping hers, his lips hot against her cheek.

Finally, Lucy's broken body mended, her drowsy faculties awakened. Sunshine was allowed to brighten the room, the blurred face, under the white cap, became a rosy-cheeked girl, named Miss Molly.

"Today she sits up, and in two weeks she goes home," Mollie was telling Ted cheerfully; poor, thin, harassed-looking Ted.

After he was gone, Lucy lay thinking of him and little Janie. She lifted her thin, white hands and looked at them critically, amazed at the change. Nails beautifuly manicured, hands soft and white.

"Pale hands I love—" came startlingly to her mind. But these hands were weak, useless; competent, busy hands must bear the scars of service. And in that instant Lucy realized that Ted's love, though long unexpressed, had never faltered. He had given her a private room and nurses, draining his resources to the limit. He had surrounded her with flowers. But sweetest of all was the thought of his lips on hers, his hoarse whisper, "I love you!"

How gladly she would assume her share of the burden! Pale hands should become work-hardened once more! Then she remembered. Ted had told her today that he had secured the long-coveted increase. So life would perhaps be easier! But in any case, from now on, together they would work and love!

"You're not crying, Mrs. Gray?" the nurse asked, concernedly.

"Yes; I'm so happy!" Lucy replied softly.

SHIFT FIREMAN PRIZE AWARDS

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Aug. 18.—At a protest meeting before the judges who awarded prizes in Thursday's firemen parade, several changes were made in the list as made public earlier. Brackenridge was awarded the prize in the heavy motor race, Freedom won the long distance travel cup, Sharpsburg had the heaviest man in line of parade, and Somerset the tallest fireman.

The mummers parade last night brought to a close the special events in connection with the convention which officially closes today.

3 ON BRADDOCK FORCE LAID OFF

The second shakeup of the Braddock police force within a few months occurred last night when three patrolmen were suspended, accused of conduct unbecoming officers. They are William McQuilkin, Hugh Cassidy and John Bodnor. Chief Willis Harker ordered the suspension, it was said at the station house.

A short time ago Chief Harker and a patrolman were suspended by Burgess G. Fenton Mitchell, following an alleged argument with a patrolman who is said to have been under the influence of liquor. The two were re-instated at a special council meeting a week ago.

Wilkinsburg Clock, 18-Year Veteran, Felled by Auto

The clock, which stood in front of a jewelry store at 823 Wood street, was knocked down and broken. Vincent Sands, of Ella street, Wilkinsburg, driver of the truck, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

BUGS BAER Says

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

EACH day science adds a slice of information to the glossary of hokum.

Now we discover that anger increases secretion in the suprarenal gland.

The suprerenal gland is in the retail sugar business.

Unfortunately, the suprarenal gland is somewhere in front of the middle of the back. It would be great if it were in your pocket where sugar meant something.

Every time you get angry this gland secretes a little more sugar.

In other words the madder you become the sweeter you get.

If this is true then the next war will be fought with lollipops.

When you toss a sugar bowl at the wife and she pays off with a red beet, that is not a family quarrel.

It is the language of flowers set to music.

When David lowbridged Goliath with a chocolate covered grenade their rendezvous was not a duel. It was only a sugar date.

Dave smacked the big boy with a bon-bon.

When a traffic cop smears you with a plaster for obstructing detours it is only because he loves candy.

When you take a bite out of his ear it is because you have a sweet tooth.

And when the judge gives you 30 days it is because he knows there is happiness in every cell.

Science may be right this time but we suspect that mice will continue to nibble at sugar and lions will gobble meat. You cannot convince us that a leopard can change his spots for after-dinner mints.

Still, there is something in the idea of the suprarenal gland making honey. After a man has been pushed around in the subway, flattened by a few taxicabs, insulted by waiters and gyped by ticket speculators, we can readily imagine that whirring of the motors in his suprarenal glands has converted him into an all-day sucker.

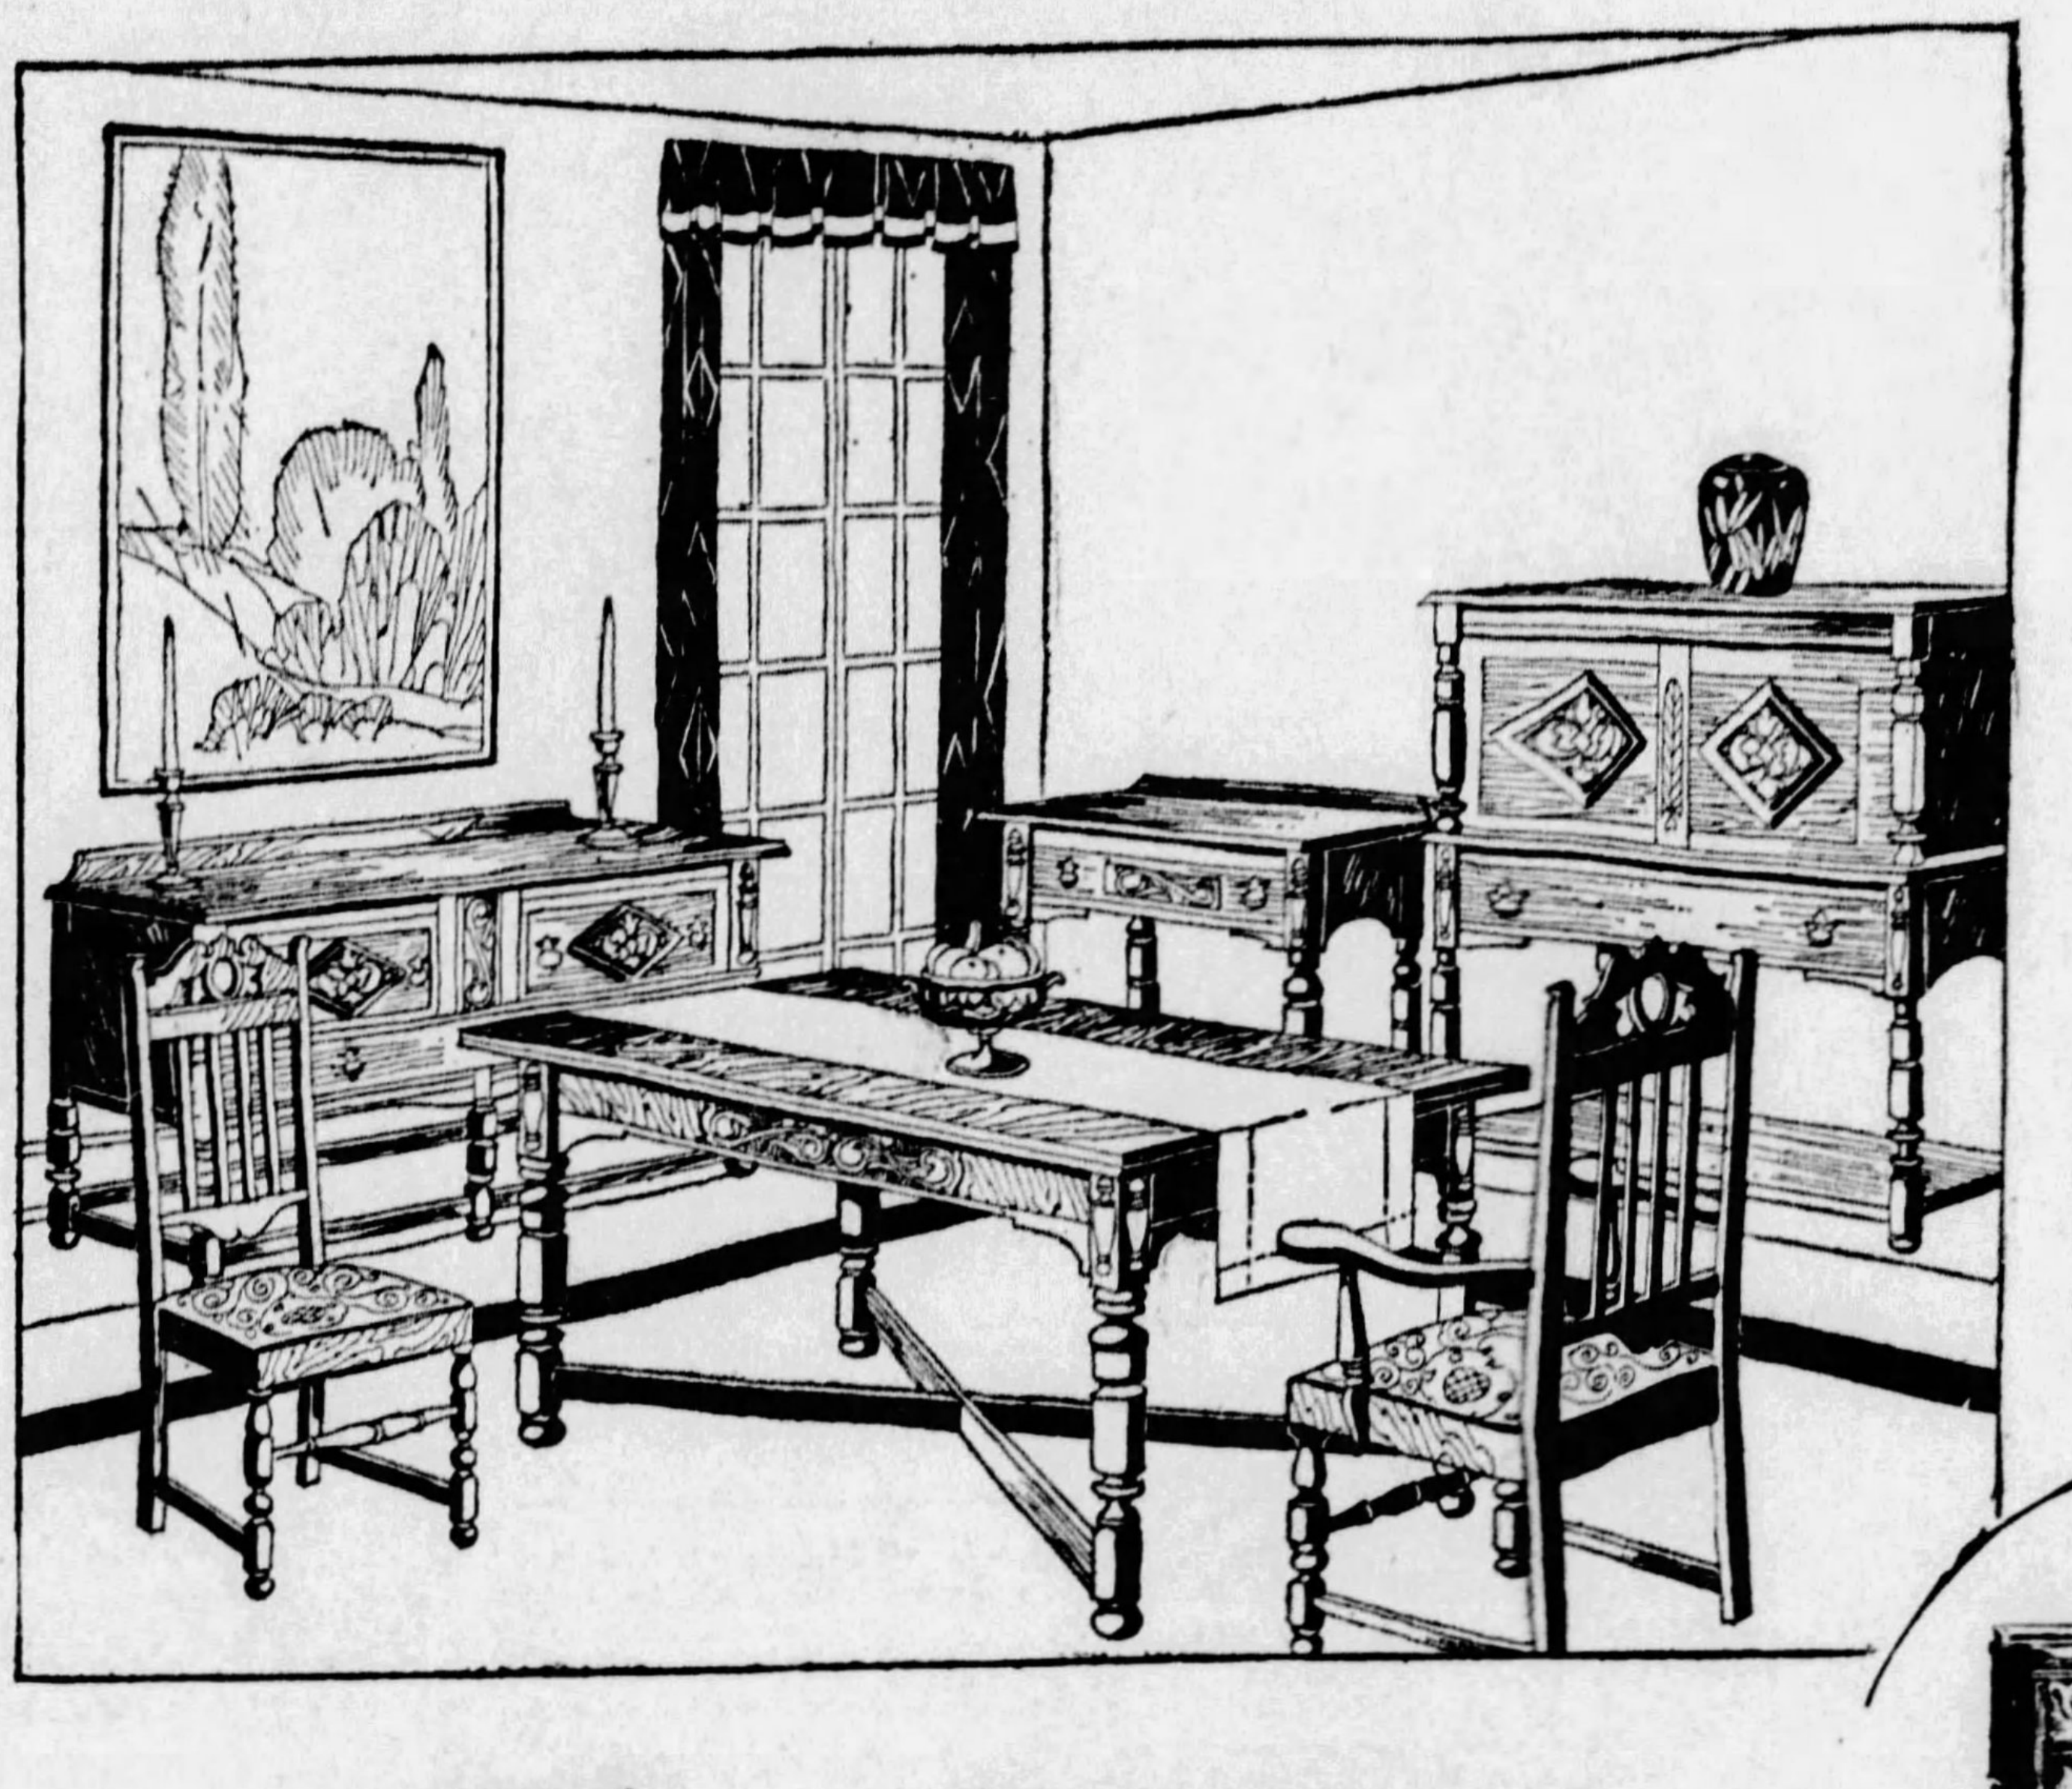
English Style Dining Suite
$325
In oak, or in walnut and gumwood, this ten-piece dining room suite carries out the sturdiness of contour and style characteristic of the early 17th century furniture in England. At the same time it is of convenient proportions for the modern home. The geometrical panels, the crossed stretcher and turned legs are all characteristic details of that period.

Spinet Desk, $46.00
One of the unusually good values in the August Sale. Of mahogany and gumwood with sloping top. Windsor chair with braced back, and gracefully shaped seat; in mahogany finish, $6.75.



The August Furniture Sale
Proves Its Worth to Home-Makers

Primarily it is giving them the kind of furniture they want at the prices they want to pay.

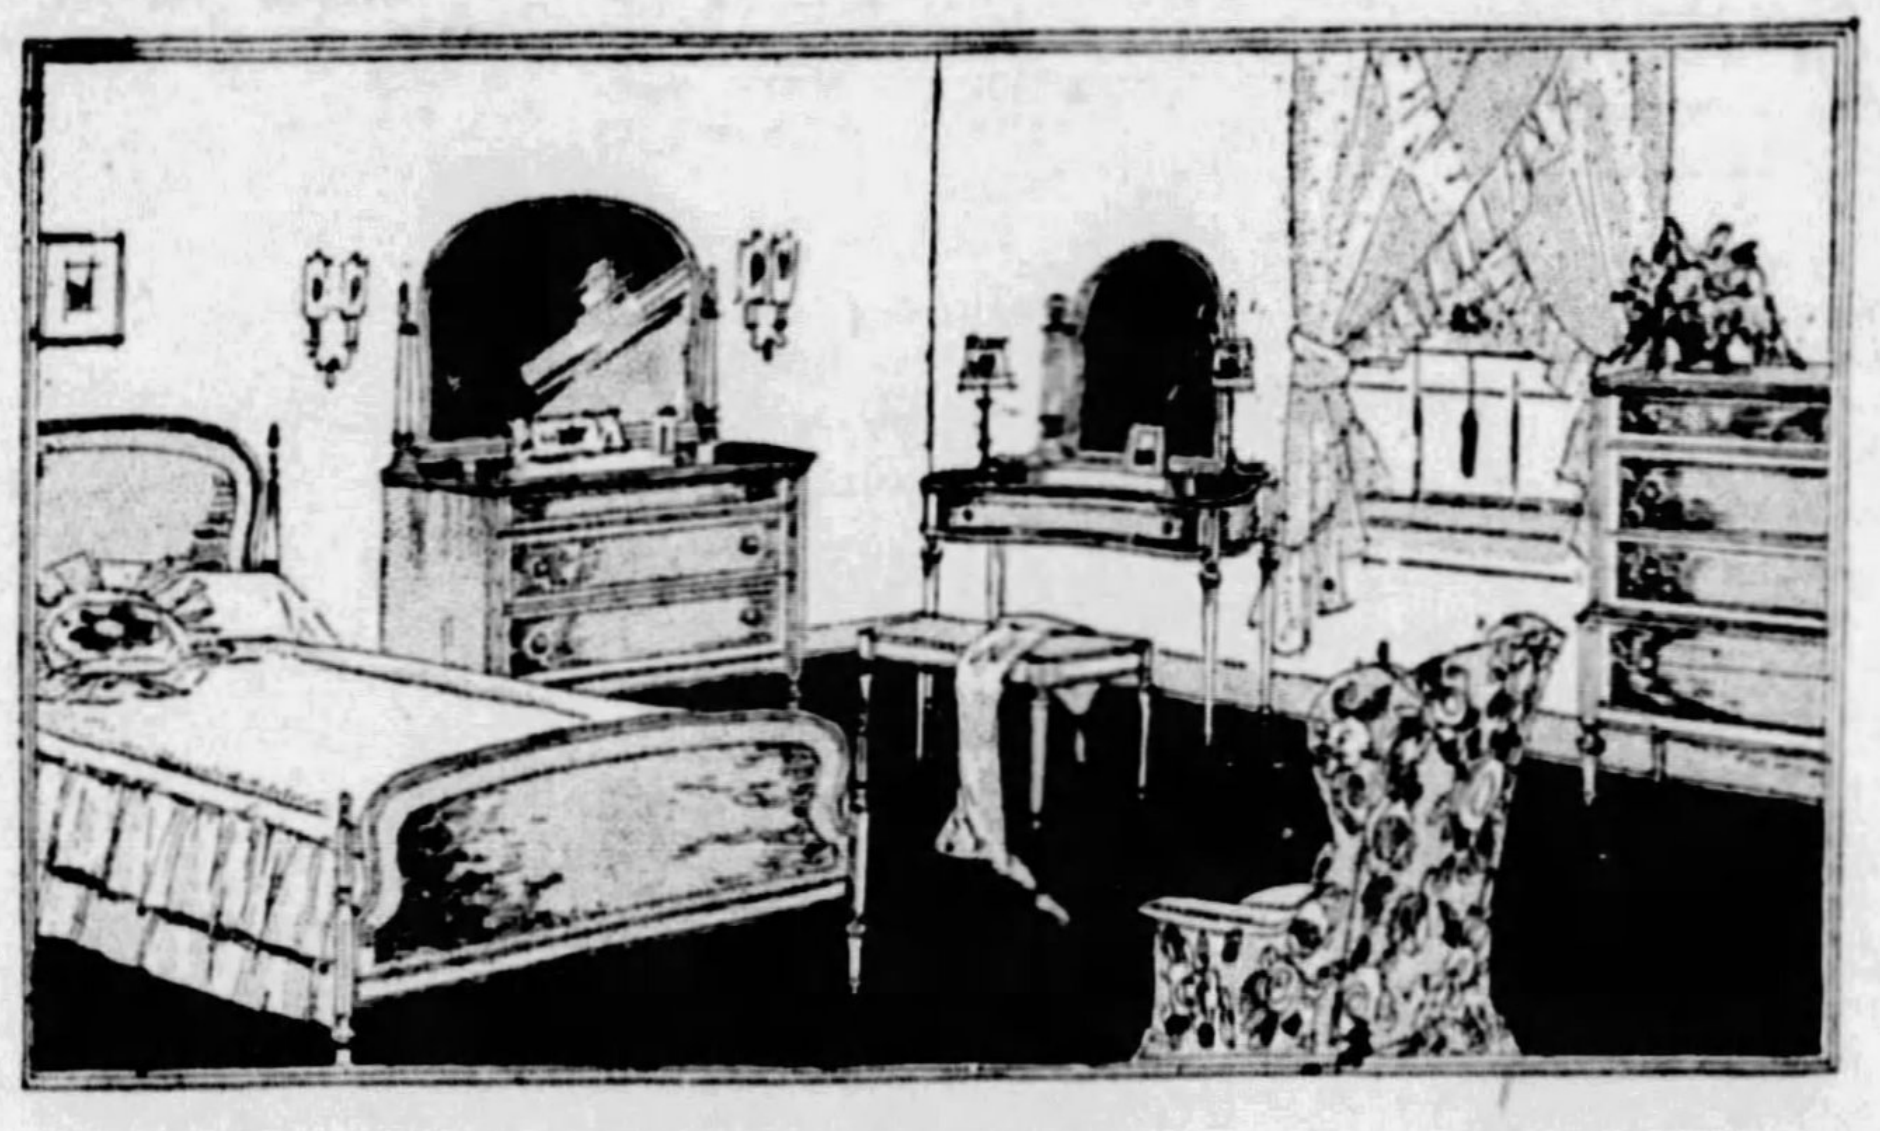
It gives them the styles most in demand—the types of furniture wanted and needed for modern homes, particularly small ones.

It gives them splendid selections of this furniture.

And every bit of the furniture offered from the finest suite to the most inexpensive single piece, is built up to the Horne standards of quality, beauty and good taste.

Moderately priced to begin with—the August Sale prices make it surprisingly low.

Boudoir Chair
$26.50
"Mary Lee" chair, low and comfortable, gaily covered in bright cretonnes with a box pleated flounce below. A most attractive-looking chair into which you "fit" comfortably.



Bed Outfit
$49.00 Complete
Colonial style four-poster bed of mahogany and gumwood, offered complete with springs and mattress at this low August Sale price—a great value. Double-deck coil springs, and a 50-pound layer felt mattress.

Debutante, Far From Living Life of Ease, Takes Time From Society's Whirl to Help Less Fortunate

BETTY DWYER

Miss Betty Dwyer, who lives in the East End, has been visiting friends in New York state and expects to return home the latter part of this month.

MRS. H. C. M'CRADY

Mrs. Howard C. McCrady and Mr. McCrady have moved into their new home, located on Rodi road, just off William Penn Highway.

MOST people are inclined to define the word "debutante" in terms of gaiety and complete freedom from responsibilities. They think she does nothing all day but have a good time, running from one party to another and giving no thought to any of the more serious phases of existence. That is far from true, of course, and for evidence we need to take nothing except the work done all the time by the Junior League.

Just as an example, though, we have Betty Dunlap, who is going to be introduced to her parents' friends at a tea early in November. Betty is the daughter of the Will Knox Dunlaps, of South Highland avenue, and all summer long she has been occupying herself with social service work. She did take a little time off, though, for a visit with a schoolmate, Peggy Buckingham, at Watertown, Conn., and she came back home again about 10 days ago.

Betty's father and mother were in the East at the same time, spending a while in New York and then visiting Mrs. Dunlap's sister, Mrs. Winfield Scott Arter in Philadelphia.

OUR horse show is well in the past by this time, but that doesn't mean that our local people aren't just as keenly interested as ever in equine affairs. The Charles Flaccuses, of Red Gable Farm, for instance, have taken some of their horses up to Hamburg, N. Y., and have entered them in the Lake Shore Hunt Club horse show, which is being held the last three days of this week. Their sons, Charles, Jr., and Bliss, are riding the horses in the show, I understand. The Flaccus family left for Hamburg on Tuesday by motor and after the show is over, they expect to drive on north to the White Mountains and spend a while at Bretton Woods.

PERHAPS you might think that a trip abroad that included such a broad itinerary as England, Holland, Germany, Switzerland and France would be sufficient vacation for anyone. But the Edward J. Schellentragers, who landed in New York yesterday on the George Washington, will not be at their home in the Schenley Apartments for another fortnight. They have gone to Atlantic City, I have heard, for two weeks.

A FEW bits of news concerning local folks have drifted in from Lake Placid. Among the Pittsburghers there are Mrs. Frank A. Hamilton and her sons, Frank, Jr., and George, of Bayard street. They are spending the summer at Pynrock Cottage, Lake Placid Club, and are planning to return home early in September.

Mrs. William Henry Schoen and her daughter, Miss Gertrude Schoen, are at the lake, too, but they won't be returning home until about the middle of next month. As for the James H. Lockharts, I hear that they are donors of the Lockhart three-win trophy which will be played for at the men's singles in the annual August invitation tennis tournament at the Lake Placid Club next week. Charles and George Lockhart are entered in the tournament, as is Paul DeF. Hicks, of Pittsburgh.

MRS. H. T. FOLEY, of Elwyn, Pa., gave a dinner Wednesday night in honor of Mrs. John Leppla, who sails today for a three months' visit with her mother, Mrs. H. Gardner, of Lancaster, England, and Mrs. Alexander Dow, of Los Angeles, formerly of Brentwood. There were eight guests. Mrs. Dow expects to return to her home in September.

Washington Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Margaret Permelia Traynor will be maid of honor and Miss Dorothy Louise Downall, bridesmaid. Edward Miller will be best man and the ushers will include William Russell, Elmer Richter and Frank Van Essen. A dinner for the bridal party and families will follow the service in the Bahmer home.

THE marriage of Miss Geraldine G. Corbett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Corbett, of Coraopolis, and Henry W. Dosey, of Pittsburgh, was solemnized Thursday at 2:30 o'clock in the Corbett home. Miss Gladys Corbett was her sister's maid of honor, and Edward Westenberger, of Chicago, was his cousin's best man. Miss Tydfil Jones, of Homestead, played the wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Dosey are taking a Canadian trip and after September 15 will be at home in Melwood street.

PEACE LEAGUE PLANS UNUSUAL PROGRAM

THE program committee of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom has planned an unusuually fine program for next season. Among its speakers will be Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan; Carleton Beals, the first newspaper man to successfully approach Sandino, of Nicaragua; Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, author and traveler of international note; Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, who is at present in Russia, and George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of The Sun-Telegraph, who is spending the summer in Southern Europe. Mrs. Owen, whose oratory bears comparison with her noted father's and who is no stranger to Pittsburgh audiences, a woman who played a notable part in the World War, is scheduled to address the league in Carnegie Lecture Hall on February 6. Mr. Beals' talk is on the calendar for March 7 in the Congress of Clubs. The league is bringing Mrs. Mead to Pittsburgh for a two weeks' visit, during which she will speak before a number of women's organizations in addition to her hostess group. She will be in Pittsburgh from October 21 to November 10. Dr. Johnson's talk, in which he will give his observations and impressions of this, his second trip to Soviet Russia, will probably be in September and Mr. Seibel's in October. Armistice Day will be celebrated by the showing of a motion picture, "Hell and the Way Out," in one of the downtown theaters. For the closing feature of the season when "good will and peace day" will be celebrated (May 18) the league has engaged Carnegie Music Hall and will, in co-operation with the Pittsburgh Musicians' Club, present a program of music of the nations.

THE gold and white crested year books of the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue have again made their way to the members. They announce a larger number of speakers than the club has been in the habit of hearing, the first of these scheduled being Mrs. Joseph Schutzman, president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, who will address the club on September 25. The opening meeting on September 11 will be a business session. The two October gatherings will be a guest day and a lecture, the latter at Carnegie Institute, where luncheon will be served. Mrs. William A. McMaster, chairman of the fine arts department of the congress, is another speaker listed, her date being November 26. Mrs. William A. Kaness, of North Linden avenue, will be hostess for the Christmas party. A card party will be a March event. Both May meetings will be devoted to business and there is to be the customary June outing.

GROVETON RESIDENTS ASK M'GOVERN'S AID

Residents of Groveton last night decided to appeal to County Commissioner Charles G. McGovern to help them in their fight to stop the closing of the Groveton crossing of the Montour Railroad in Robinson township. When notified of their action the commissioner said that he was willing to take any action that would benefit the Groveton citizens. It is alleged by residents of the community that the crossingg is the only outlet from the town and the proposed outlet over an old road is impassable in winter and adds a mile to the distance to the nearest town.

Noble Love Exemplified

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SOME folks shake their heads and insist with persistent pessimism that unselfish, chivalrous love no longer exists—that jazz, the necking party, the hip flask and the joy ride determine the character of modern love.

Those who believe in love, and those who are pessimistic on the subject, should alike enjoy the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I would like to answer 'Unhappy,' whose letter appeared in your column a short time ago, telling how she mistakenly sent away the man she loved and became engaged to one whom she realizes she does not love. My experience has been similar to hers, but thanks to the fineness of a man who loves me, my problem is solved as I hope hers may be.

"I had promised to marry a man whom I thought I did not love. I felt sorry for him, so I accepted him. I used to moon over this and was quite moody and irritable most of the time.

"Finally I decided that if I was mean to him he would become angry and disgusted with me and we would quarrel. So I slighted him whenever I could and finally the break came. It worked out just as I had thought it would, even though he was so easy-going and good-natured.

"We talked things over and came to an understanding as to how things stood. And we both decided that we'd better end things. He said he would go far away.

"When this happened, the man I had imagined I loved, heard of it and asked me whether it was true. He advised me to be sure of myself before I took any definite steps, as the other man was heartbroken. He said it was best for us not to see each other for a time.

"Meanwhile, the young man I had been engaged to, came to the house to see my brother. All the time I was realizing more and more how much I really cared for him. Finally, I told the other young man how I felt. He told the man I had been engaged to, and my former fiance called me up. I said he could come to the house again, and we made up.

"Now I am happier than I have ever been. We have announced our engagement and are to be married in two months.

"As for the other young man, he showed his truly wonderful character and manliness in not taking advantage, as he could easily have done, of the situation—did he not? I am sorry for him, but I feel like a sister to him. He will find the Right One some day.

"I hope your correspondent, who signed her letter 'Unhappy,' may, like myself, find herself very happy. And I wish you, also, every happiness." HAPPY."

Thank you, dear "Happy" for your good wishes! I wish that every reader of your letter to me may realize happiness during 1928, as deep and satisfying as the love you and your fiance are now experiencing.

As for the friend, who sacrificing his own love for you, brought about the reconciliation, it is safe to say that he experiences joy and peace unknown to the petty-minded of this world.

He was wise as well as generous, in acting as he did. Taking advantage of the situation, he might, it is true, have persuaded you to marry him. But in so doing he would not only sacrifice his ideal, but would marry a woman in love with another man.

I am thinking of an instance brought to my attention of a man who deliberately schemed to separate two friends of his who were engaged to each other, that he might marry the girl.

His scheme worked. He poisoned her mind against her fiance and she married, instead, the man who lied to win her.

He knew she did not love him. Later, when she learned the truth, he knew she despised him. This man spent years of jealous mental torture fearing that some other man as unprincipled as himself might win his wife from him. There can be no real joy in a marriage where there is not mutual love.

When love is unrequited, it should at least prove a solace to help farther in every way, the welfare and happy, harmonious romance of the beloved. There is more of this noble affection in the world than we realize and, even when unrequited, it is the most beautiful thing in life.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

CEREMONIES marking Senator Charles Curtis' official notification that he is the Republican candidate for Vice President, will go on the air at 7 o'clock tonight. KDKA will be in the hookup. The ceremonies will take place on the steps of the Kansas state capitol in Topeka.

Olive Marshall, operatic soprano, and Del Staigers, cornet soloist, will be featured during the Goldman Band concert to be heard through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Marshall will sing "Care Selve," by Handel, and Mozart's "Hallelujah," while Mr. Staigers has chosen the fantasie from Bellstedt's "Princess Alice." Grand opera will be represented by the overture to Thomas' "Mignon," excerpts from "Aida," by Verdi, and music from Wagner's "Lohengrin." The famous "1812 Overture," by Tschaikowsky, based on Russian national themes, will be the final selection. The program will be directed by Edwin Franko Goldman.

Guest conductors of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra will have gone their various ways for the summer concert season and Willem van Hoogstraten will be back on the director's stand when that group broadcasts through the NBC System, including WCAE, at 8:30 o'clock. The orchestra will feature Nicolai's overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," based upon Shakespeare's comedy first performed in 1849. Old as it is, the opera still holds the stage, and the overture is one of the most popular in the opera and concert class. There will follow Sarabande, a Spanish dance believed to have its origin among the Moorish races; a good Strauss waltz, "Voices of Spring," and three excerpts from Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust;" the Minuet of the Will o' the Wisps, the Dance of the Sylphs, and the famous Rakoczy March, a marching song of a wild character originating with the Hungarian gypsies. Tschaikowsky's "Fifth Symphony" will have the place of honor in the program.

Lew White, organist, will present a Victor Herbert program through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 7:30 o'clock. A group of the Irish-American composer's favorite numbers will open the program. "Badinage," "Devotion" and "Whispering Willows," three light but charming pieces, follow. Selections from "Eileen," a musical comedy, and "Habanera," from "Natoma," and the theme melodies from "The Fortune Teller" also will be played.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

AIDS FOR IRKSOME COMPLEXION

MARIA JERITZA

IN winter-time, a complexion inclined to be oily is not an unmitigated misfortune, for it resists drying winds more successfully than the very dry skin. But in hot weather a woman with an oily complexion is out of luck. Her face beams, her nose shines with oil and perspiration. Powder refuses to stay on. And if she frets about them, her chin, nose and forehead only shine the more brightly.

The skin in perfect condition is neither shiny nor too dry, but fine-pored and velvety. This is the standard to strive for.

An excessively oily complexion indicates that the skin of the body is not functioning vigorously enough to carry off its share of bodily waste, hence the facial pores are doing double duty. A more active life, physically, with a daily hot bath to keep the pores open and a cold rinse to tone them, and with abundant exercise to improve circulation and nourish skin cells, should bring about better complexion conditions.

You will find it will aid your complexion as well as your figure to listen in each morning when physical culture exercises are being broadcast over a local station, and follow the directions of the instructor. Or practice exercises similar to the following every morning for 10 minutes before your bath:

Sit on the floor cross-legged, Turkish fashion, merely dropping down without using any muscles but those of your legs. Now with your legs still crossed, rise to your knees and bend backward as far as you can without straining, flinging your arms back over your head. Bring your arms to your sides and at the same time bend forward—still on your knes—until your head rests on the floor. Return to upright kneeling position and repeat the backward and forward bend 10 times.

Eat less of starches, such as bread and potatoes, less of sweets, less of rich and fat food in order to lessen the supply of oil in your skin.

If your complexion is oily, you will find that very warm water is needed to remove the oil, perspiration and grime. Hot water is also drying. If your complexion reacts well to pure soap, so much the better—scrub your face gently with soap suds and upward strokes of a flesh brush or a coarse Turkish wash-cloth. Launder the wash-cloth every week and wash it out and dry it every time you use it, else you will rub the grime back into your pores.

After your warm scrub, rinse your face, neck and ears with softened cold water, and finally with a little of the contents of a 16-ounce bottle filled as follows:

Elderflower water, 6 ounces; Eau de Cologne, 1 ounce; Tincture of benzoin, 15 drops, distilled water, enough to fill the remainder of the bottle.

Use a little cold cream occasionally when your skin is rough, but never leave it on over night. Powder and rouge, although drying, should be used cautiously, for if they are plastered on, they will choke the pores, mingle with the natural oil and result in a blotched skin. Fluff powder on lightly with a clean puff.

Good health, exercise, fresh air, daily baths, plain food and sensible care of the skin will in time bring you a lovely complexion, as surely as two plus two are four.

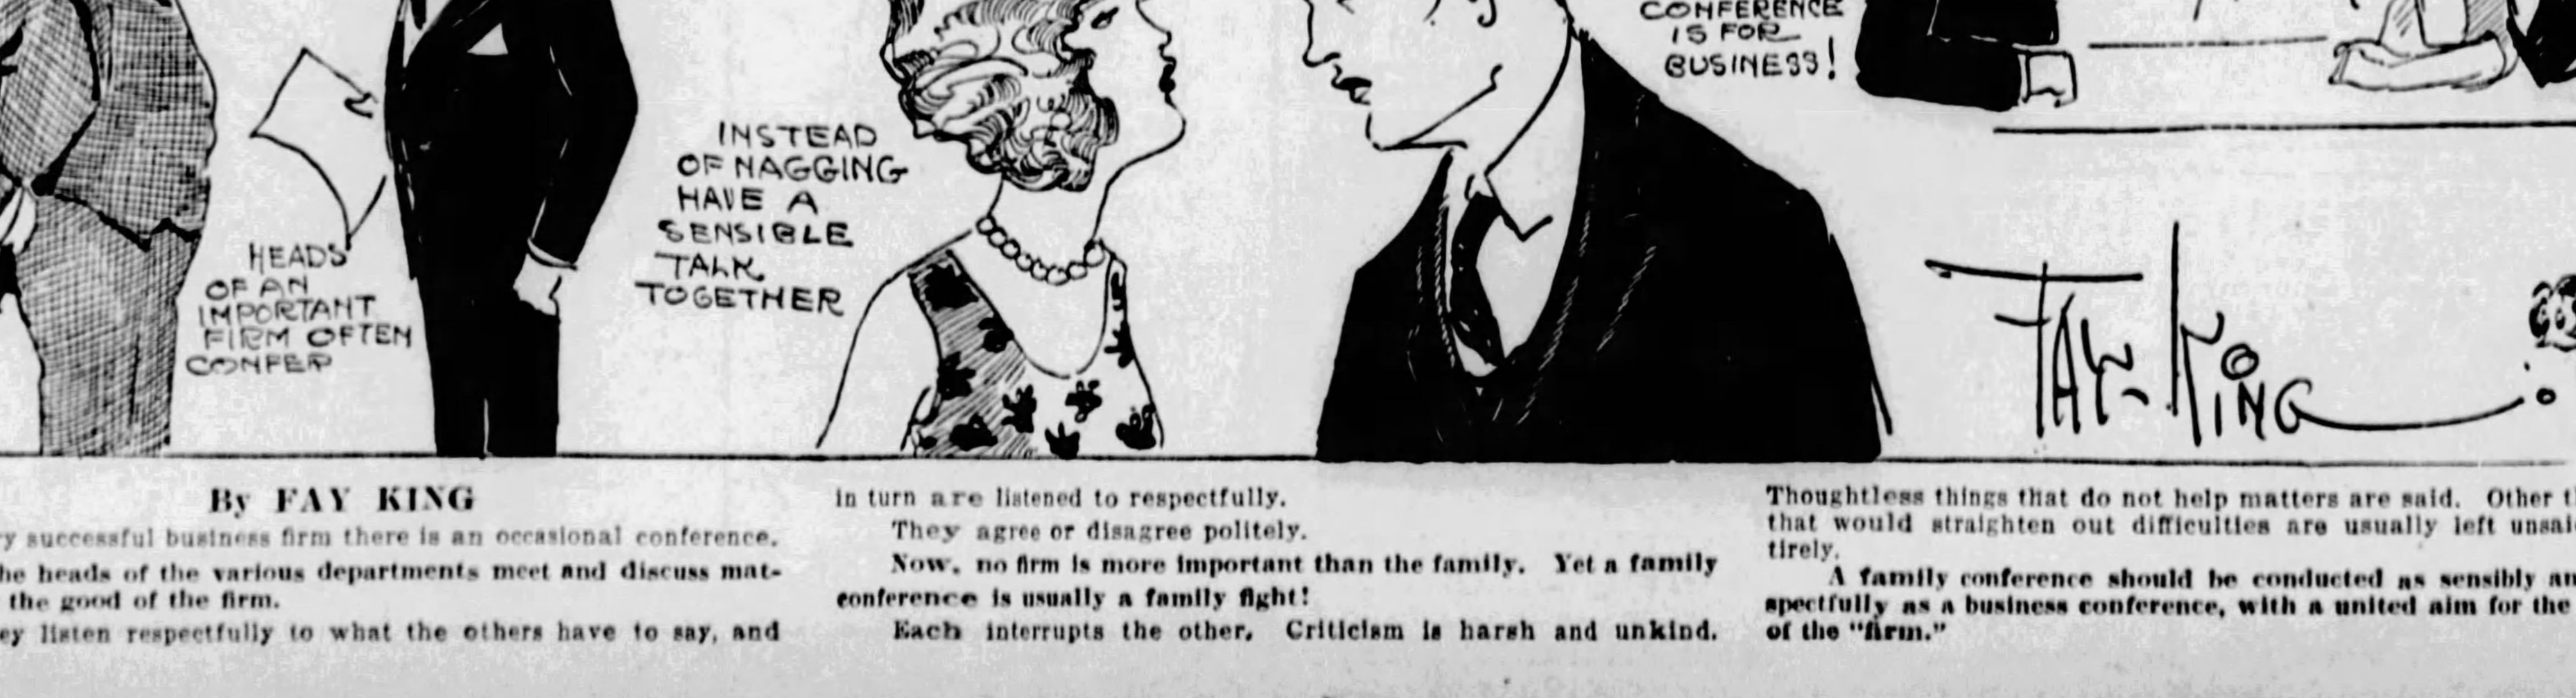
Fay King Applies Psychology of Conference to Business of Home



HEADS OF AN IMPORTANT FIRM OFTEN CONFER
INSTEAD OF NAGGING HAVE A SENSIBLE TALK TOGETHER
A FAMILY CONFERENCE SHOULD BE AS GOOD FOR THE HOME AS AN OFFICE CONFERENCE IS FOR BUSINESS!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

IN every successful business firm there is an occasional conference.

The heads of the various departments meet and discuss matters for the good of the firm.

They listen respectfully to what the others have to say, and in turn are listened to respectfully.

They agree or disagree politely.

Now, no firm is more important than the family. Yet a family conference is usually a family fight!

Each interrupts the other. Criticism is harsh and unkind. Thoughtless things that do not help matters are said. Other things that would straighten out difficulties are usually left unsaid entirely.

A family conference should be conducted as sensibly and respectfully as a business conference, with a united aim for the good of the "firm."

Paul Waner Sets Record by Scoring More Than 100 Runs in Each of First Three Major Seasons—Hillis Fits in Well—Traynor's Big Day—Bucs Win 29 of Last 39 Games.

WHEN he boosted his 1928 tally total from 99 to 102 by scoring three times in the second game of the doubleheader at Forbes Field yesterday, Paul Waner not only won the distinction of being the first player in the National League to reach the century mark in runs this year (and only Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig beat him to it in the American), but he hung up a record that probably will stand for a while.

Paul Waner

For Waner must now be credited with the achievement of scoring more than 100 runs in each of his first three seasons in the big show, and you will have to do a lot of digging to find a parallel for that performance.

ABOUT the only player who can lay claim to even a tie with Waner is Lou Blue, first baseman of the St. Louis Americans. Starting as a regular for Detroit in 1921, Blue scored 103 tallies; the following year he rang up 131 and in 1923 he made an even 100.

Blue had been on Detroit's roster in 1918, however, but failed to stick in the fast set from the time of his entry and was sent back to the minors for two years, whereas Waner made good right off the well-known reel.

Look over the records of all the other noted modern run-getters and you will find that none of them equaled Waner.

Lou Gehrig passed the century line in his second, third and fourth seasons, but in his first year his total was only 73.

During the first year in which Babe Ruth was used regularly instead of figuring merely as a pitcher he crossed the plate only 50 times.

FRANK FRISCH was under the mark in his first two seasons, and so was Ken Williams. Hazen Cuyler did the trick in his second and third seasons, but was stopped at 94 in his first. Max Carey scored only 77 in his first year, Eddie Collins 39, and Earl Combs 10.

It took Freddie Lindstrom and Goose Goslin four years to break into the 100-run class, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker five, George Sisler and Harry Heilmann six, Rogers Hornsby seven and Sam Rice nine.

Mack Hills

WANER scored 101 markers in his first year as a Pirate, and 113 last season. With 102 to his credit thus far in 1928, he has dented the home plate with his spikes 316 times since he joined the Buccaneers in 1926. Counting the last two years of his minor league career, Paul has scored more than 100 runs in each of five straight seasons, as he turned in 113 in 1924 and 167 in 1925 for San Francisco in the Pacific Coast League. Incidentally, Waner added eight points to his batting average, lifting it to .370, by making six hits in seven times at bat yesterday.

IT IS fortunate for the Pirates that Mack Hillis reported before Dick Bartell was injured, making it possible for Manager Bush to put the Columbia recruit at second base and shift Sparky Adams to shortstop. Otherwise the Pirate infield would have been in a bad way.

Hillis has made a fine start and given splendid service in the emergency. In four games to date he has made six hits in 16 times at bat for an average of .375 and in the field he has accepted 21 chances without an error. In every game he has made a long hit, starting with a home run against Dazzy Vance on Wednesday, making a triple on Thursday, connecting for a three-bagger in the first game yesterday and cracking out a double in the second encounter. He was also on the starting end of four fast double plays yesterday.

EVIDENTLY, Pie Traynor wasn't feeling well yesterday. All that the Pirate captain could do during the doubleheader with the Phils was to tear off three triples, a double and three singles, or seven hits in eight times at bat, connect for two sacrifice flies, drive in two runs in the first game and six in the second, score three tallies himself, and contribute a one-hand stop at third base that was a breath-taker.

Traynor's batting average went up to .327 as a result of his hitting spree. He surely is setting a fine example for the other Bucs in his present form.

Pie Traynor.

FRIDAY'S double victory over the Phils extended the latest winning streak of the Pirates to 13 triumphs in their last 16 games. That tells only part of the story of their drive during the second half of the season, however, which includes only one streak of 10 straight wins and another of eight in a row. Do you know that for a period of six weeks they have been playing practically .750 ball, which means the winning of three out of every four games played, on an average? Well, it's a fact. Since July 8 the Pirates have won 29 out of 39 games, a percentage of .744, and unquestionably the best ball played by any club in the league in that time. 'Again yesterday they gained on all the teams ahead of them, a game and a half on St. Louis and Chicago and half a game on New York and Cincinnati. Had the Reds not nosed out the Braves yesterday after the latter had taken a 1-to-0 lead in the first half of the ninth, Pittsburgh would have gone into fourth place and the first division by one point. As it is they are only one game behind the Reds and fourth place, a game and a half behind the Cubs and third position, four and a half games behind the Giants and seven and a half games behind the league leading Cardinals.

AMERICA'S newest creation in summer sport fashions is a soccer football league in New York that plays all of its games at night under powerful electric lights.

The New York Giant soccer team played several games under flood lights last season in the American League, but this is the first time in the history of soccer in this country that an entire league playing only at night has gone into operation. The league is sponsored by the United States Football Association, of which William Angus of Cleveland, vice president, is one of the most active officials.

GOTHAM'S night league is an amateur organization of eight clubs, and each team will meet the seven others once. The games are of only 30 minutes dura-

DRIVERS SET FOR 200-MILE GRIND

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 18.—Eighteen of the world's greatest auto pilots, mounted in as many of the country's fastest speed creations, will take to the track at the Altoona Speedway this afternoon at 2:30 in the 200-mile international speed sweepstakes.

Indications are that the race would be staged in the presence of the greatest crowd in the history of the local speedway.

The program is scheduled to open at 2 o'clock, when 14 drivers will compete in a 10-mile sprint classic. This will be followed 15 minutes later by an international 10-mile sprint, with Leon Duray, Cliff Woodbury, Bob McDonogh and Ray Keech as the starters.

At 2:30 the big race will get under way, with 18 starters, including such luminaries as Keech, holder of the world record; Cliff Bergere, the French ace; Dave Evans, Johnny Seymour, Russell Snowberger, Norman Batten, Fred Cpmer, Cliff Woodbury, Louis Meyer, Bob McDonogh, Leon Duray, Lou Moore, Ralph Hepburn, Earl Devore, Deacon Litz, Bill Spence, Eddie Hearne and Babe Stapp.

Joseph P. Crane, stunt flier, will furnish an added thrill with a parachute drop prior to the start of the race.

CHILLY SAUCE

BY CHILLY DOYLE

PIE TRAYNOR has given Forbes Field patrons so many thrills that the fans are accustomed to Pie, yet the magnificience of Harold Joseph in the double bill of yesterday was not lost on any of the onlookers. Traynor's favorite way of shocking the spectators was not entirely missing in the frolic with the Quakers, but Pie deviated from his diving tactics to give his admirers a remarkable batting treat.

Driving in eight tallies, Pie uncorked three three-baggers, a double, three singles and two sacrifice lofts. His bat and base running was in almost every sortie staged during the two contests. The sparkling hits that flickered off his stick were of the desired variety, the trend of his afternoon indicating that Pie may be up with the leaders again when the curtain falls. He was the fifth best battler in the league last season, only the Waner brohers, Hornsby and Riggs Stephenson outstripping him.

TRAYNOR'S fielding feature in the ninth inning of the first game just naturally knocked the fans cold in their seats. Heinie started an ordinary double down the left field line. Pie made a spectacular barehand stop of the grounder. The stop in itself would satisfy the ordinary thirdbaseman, but Pie wanted a putout or nothing. He had to let go with both barrels without taking a real squint at

Robin Stars Test Oakmont

THE EXPLOSION SHOT

Dazzy Vance has been in many jams during his long pitching career, but he found the sand traps at Oakmont just as tough as any "three-on-and-no-out" situation he has ever faced in baseball. The speedball veteran of the Dodgers is shown using the niblick in an effort to emerge from one of the many treacherous traps that grace Emil Loeffler's difficult golf layout.

REAL FORM

Dazzy hits the ball just as straight and with as much speed as he uses on the baseball mound, according to those who have seen him in action on the links. Ole Dazmarine is shown at the top of his drive.

ONE OF THE GAME'S BEST

Arnold (Jigger) Statz, star outfielder of the Robins, is rated as the best golfer in major league baseball today. Statz has made an enviable record in tournament play during the winter season, having won several championships on the coast. Statz hits a beautiful tee shot, getting as much distance as many of the pros on the Pacific coast. Statz amazed Emil Loeffler, Oakmont pro, with his showing over the difficult Oakmont course,

FUSSELL AND HILL TO FACE PHILS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE fast-going Pirates, as they made ready for another double-header with the Quakers this afternoon were so close to third place that it is entirely possible for them to move into that notch before the day is over. Another sugar-coated triumph like that of yesterday would turn the trick, provided the fourth-place Reds and third-place Cubs were to meet defeat during the afternoon. True, a lots of "ifs" are involved, yet many stranger things happen in the realm of sport.

In any event, the Bushwhackers are saying little and sawing wood. The Oaklanders no doubt took due notice of the defeat plastered on the Redbirds by the Giants yesterday. It's a far cry from the Pirates to the Redbirds, but lots of things are possible in six weeks of baseball and the present race has that far to run.

Manager Bush will call upon Carmen Hill and Fred Fussell to heckle the Quakers this afternoon. The lefthander has had only two rest days, but it is recalled that he pitched his recent 12-inning masterpiece with the Cards on two days of relaxation. Manager Shotton is likely to call upon Ray Benge and Russell Miller.

In view of the fact that Mack Hillis was an outstanding star in the Pirates double victory over the Phillies yesterday, the Sally League star will continue at the keystone sack in today's dual bill. Sparky Adams will remain in the shortfield where he is performing like a topnotcher. Dick Bartell could go back to his infield task, but Dick's leg will be given more rest inasmuch as the present combination is functioning well.

The Buccos didn't have much trouble in winning both ends of yesterday's lengthy frolic. The first contest brought the Oaklanders home on the singing end of a 10 to 3 game. The score of the finale was 5 to 1.

Remy Kremer recorded another victory in the opener. Kremer was opposed all the way by Claude Willoughby, a boy who is capable of clever slab work. Willoughby did well against the Buccos, but they were in a batting mood and could not be stopped.

Ervin Brame gave a masterly exhibition in the closing affair. The tall righthander apparently has recovered from the sore hand inflicted on him when the Phils were in town on their last excursion. The Quakers used Lester Sweetland, Johnny Milligan and Augie Walsh.

Capt. Pie Traynor had a field day for the Pirates, the star third-sacker making seven hits, including three three-baggers during the afternoon. Traynor also uncorked two sacrifice drives to the outfield. He drove in a total of eight runs during the day. On defensive he gave the doubleheaders its best play in the opener when he turned in a circus assist on a ball hit by Heinie Sand.

The Pirates gained early leads in both encounters and not once were they headed. The visitors fought gamely but there were so many basehits in the bats of the home players the enemy didn't have a chance.

The Waner boys were almost up to the efficiency of Traynor at the plate, Paul and Lloyd ripping off 10 hits in the afternoon. Practically every one of the 30 hits credited the Buccos were solid blows.

WOMEN STARS CLASH FOR WESTERN CROWN

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Miss Virginia Wilson, Chicago, a slender young woman with a sunny smile and modest bearing, stands between Mrs. Harry Pressler, of Los Angeles, and her second successive western golf championship.

This dynamic girl set a marvelous record yesterday in defeating Dorothy Page, University of Wisconsin co-ed, by the wide margin of 5 and 4 in the semi-finals.

The champion meantime edged her way to the last struggle by defeating Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, 2 and 1, with golf that was somewhat spotty, but still good enough on compared scores to make her only two down to the sub-par game played by Miss Wilson.

Farrell Sets New Mark

THE course record at Shannopin took a sound belting yesterday as Johnny Farrel, national open champion, and Gene Sarazen, former possessor of the open crown, defeated Charley Manning, Shannopin pro, and Wallace Thompson, 1926 club champion, in an exhibition best ball match, five and four.

Farrell set a new course mark with a fine 69, going out in 35 and coming back in 34. His partner was just two strokes above this mark, with a 71.

SHIELDS, WOOD WIN JUNIOR DOUBLES TITLE

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Coming from behind to take the last two sets, Frank Shields, of New York, and W. Barry Wood, of Milton, Mass., yesterday won the national junior doubles tennis championship, defeating Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, 4-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The national boys' doubles honors went South when Kendall Cram, of Nashville, and Joe Bill Bralley, of Austin, Tex., won the final match from R. K. Hebard, White Plains, N. Y., and Raeme Donovan, New York, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

In the championship match for the national junior singles title today, Shields will clash with Gledhill. Cram and Hebard will fight it out for the national boys' singles crown.

GIANTS REDUCE CARDINALS' LEAD

And the Red Sox Call Minor League Teams "Farms"

M'Grawmen Make Gain

By LES CONKLIN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—By beating the Cardinals in St. Louis today and tomorrow, the Giants can take the lead in the National League race. The standing of the clubs then would be:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
New York	66	43	.606
St. Louis	70	46	.603

The fly in this ointment is that two New York southpaws are due to work against the Cards in the remaining games of the series, and southpaws are "the fondest things they is of." But precedent counts for little in this series. Yesterday the Giants vanquished Clarence Mitchell, their ancient jinx, 3 to 2, for the first time since he joined the St. Louis club two months ago.

Larry Benton, New York mound ace, relieved the tiring Fitzsimmons and saved the game by retiring five successive batters. A wild throw by Andy High was converted into a New York tally by fast broken field running on the part of Andy Reese, ex-Vanderbilt football star.

The Giants now have won nine out of 16 from St. Louis this season.

The fast-climbing Pirates scuttled the Phillies twice, 10 to 3 and 9 to 1, walloping 30 hits. Traynor got seven bingles and P. Waner six.

ADAMS, KING IN FINAL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.
Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 18.—S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., veteran star of Forest Hills and former resident of the Steel City, will battle Gwynn King, of Washington, for the men's singles championship of Western Maryland on the grandstand court of the Women's Civic Club here today.

Adams, twice holder of the Western Maryland challenge cup, hurtled into the final yesterday afternoon by eliminating John O'Loughlin, Western Pennsylvania premier and Pittsburgh Athletic Association luminary, 6-3, 6-3. King present possessor of the trophy which he first copped in 1926 and again in 1927, attained the decisive bracket through a 6-3,6-2, victory over Bill McCabe of Penn State and Corapolis.

In the women's singles, Mrs. DeLloyd Thompson, Washington flash and defending title-holder entered the semi-finals by dint of a 6-3, 6-1, Triumph over Mrs. W. V. Winchester, of Baltimore. Margaret Carspecken likewise advanced to the semi-final bracket, Rose Straub, Johnstown entry having been forced to default when Jousting was postponed Thursday.

The P. A. A. duo, Lauler and Sullivan, found the men's doubles semi-final going puite rough in their opening set with G. A. Sawin, Westinghouse driver, and Millard Lewis United States Military Academy mainstay. The winged-head outfit blew a 6-1 verdict to begin with, but steadiel to pull up from 0-2 to garner the second stanza, 7-5. Darkness terminated the clash at this juncture and the fray will be resumed today, the survivors to meet the winner of the semi-final engagement between the O'Loughlin King and Adams-Ramsey combinations.

Charley Comiskey, the old Roman, was the first first baseman to play off the bag and let the pitcher take the throw.

MISS BEJACH CITY CHAMP

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Miss Lucille Bejach stood squarely back of the experts who predicted, and rightly so, that she would win the women's city golf championship this year by crashing through in the final of the annual city tournament yesterday with a nine and eight victory over Miss Jessie Gould, winding up a week of interesting though not overly ardorous golf with a splendid victory.

Miss Bejach, the pre-tourney favorite, continued as first choice after she won the medalist honors with an 88 and was the pick of the field throughout the preliminary rounds, semi-finals and the final yesterday. In fact, she completely dominated the tourney, and wears the crown today by right of conquest.

Miss Gould, who also played some good golf during the week was a serious contender in the final yesterday only until the start of the second nine holes. The new champion was one up at the end of the first nine. At the end of the first round, Miss Bejach was seven up on her opponent.

Finishing the first nine of the final round, Miss Bejach had picked up another hole to lead at eight up and the match ended on the first green of the homeward journey when the best Miss Gould could do was to halve the hole, each taking a five.

The 1927 champion, Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, did not elect to defend her crown this year. Miss Bejach was awarded the John J. Burke trophy, the Roberts award and a fine pair of golf shoes. The prizes were presented by Supterintendent of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

In the second flight, Mrs. C. J. Mandell defeated Mrs. Pearl Irwin, six and five in the final. Mrs. Long defeated Miss Selznick in the first flight of the consolation play four and three. Mrs. Link won over Mrs. Hamilton in the second flight, three and one.

Neither Miss Bejach nor her opponent played brilliant golf yesterday, though the champion's all-around play, especially her work on the green, was superior to that exhibited by the runner-up.

U. S. STAR TO PLAY FOR CANADIAN TITLE

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—For the first time since 1914 the final round of the Canadian amateur golf championship will be an international contest between an American and a Canadian player.

W. K. Lanman, Jr., of Columbus, O., sole survivor of an American contingent that originally numbered 17 players, seven of whom qualified for the match play, will meet C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., winner of the title in 1926, in the final 36-hole match over the Summerlea golf course today.

tion, whereas a regulation soccer contest goes 90 minutes, divided into halves of 45 minutes each.

It is argued by the promoters that the shorter game makes for more and faster action, and point out that another item in favor of the 30-minute agreement is that more games can be played in one night. All games are played on Monday nights, with every league team in action.

William Angus.

YOU average citizens, trying to keep cool, probably will find it hard to associate soccer football with the present trend of weather, but the game has such a strong hold upon its followers in New York that it is a year-round sport, with rarely a shut-down.

For instance July 22 stands out in the record as the only Sunday in 1928 without a soccer game in Gotham. Sunday games were played regularly during the year, up to and including July 15. July 22 was left open, but on the following Sunday the New York Giants and other Clubs in the American League started playing exhibition games to get in shape for the opening of the league season on September 1, so that there will be games every Sunday throughout the remainder of 1928.

Grantham, yet his throw was perfect.

Mack Hillis gave the star infielders something to "shoot at." On the business end of four double plays, the recruit succeeded in doubling three lefthand batters, none of whom is slow on his feet. He put over the double shuffle on Hurst, Klein and Leach. Sparky Adams, of course, had to operate in swift manner to get the balls to Grantham in time to get the second man. Adams pivoted beautifully on each occasion, but, there was beauty, too, in the flashlike inception of the plays.

HILLIS is a strong boy with golf-like wrists when they "get into" the ball. He gave the outfielders some merry chases during the long afternoon, and on one occasion he rattled the scoreboard with a double. Leach and Southern had their backs almost against the fence in gathering in two of his drives. His three-bagger of the first contest was one of the hardest drives seen at Forbes Field in weeks.

Paul Waner has lots of time in which to overtake the Rajah in the race for the batting crown. Paul was himself yesterday and now that he appears to have recovered his fine sense of coordination the little slugger may move right along in typical clip.

IT IS quite a tribute to the Waner boys to see both up near the front in view of the plenitude of southpaws facing the Pirates in the past several weeks. Uncle Robbie appears to take delight in sending lefthanders after the Pirates, probably because he thinks they will slow down the Waners and George Grantham, de luxe lefthand hitters. But the scheme did not work well, for the Pirates defeated the Robins repeatedly and the Oklahoma jackrabbits did not lose their punch, although both slumped over a period unusual for them.

The two catching performances of Rolly Hemsley in the big emergency is worthy of much comment. Here we have a Class C graduate taking the role of first-string catcher on a major league team and doing the job in an artistic manner..

At San Francisco—Young Corbett knocked out Nick Testo, 5 rounds.

BELL DEPOSITORS TO GET NEW DIVIDEND

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph
SATURDAY, AUGUST 18, 1928

LITIGATION DELAYS PAY-OFF

Another dividend is to be awarded the creditors and depositors of the Carnegie Trust Company. This was made known today by Frank W. Jackson, special deputy to Secretary of Banking Peter G. Cameron, in charge of the affairs of the John A. Bell concerns.

Mr. Jackson said that the dividend would be small and that its payment would hinge upon the settlement of the Bell bankruptcy proceedings and the reorganization of the Carnegie Coal Company.

An order permitting Jackson to join with bondholders of the Carnegie Coal Company in a plan of reorganization was signed by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan in Common Pleas Court yesterday.

According to the petition the Carnegie Trust Company holds $100,000 of gold bonds of the Carnegie Coal Company, besides 860 shares of capital stock of the coal company and a note. It was pointed out that it would be necessary to effect the reorganization and sell the new securities before the Carnegie Trust Company's final dividend could be declared.

3 Give Up $15,000 in Loot

Alleged confessions said to have been made by three young men under arrest in the East End, resulted in the recovery last night of $15,000 worth of stolen goods.

The young men were arrested early yesterday by Frankstown Avenue police and they are being held pending a further investigation of their activities.

They are Louis Iovno, 19, of 7332 Denniston avenue; Russell Woods, 17, of 7330 Burton avenue, and Ray Woods, 23, of 7338 Swissvale avenue, a cousin of Russell Woods.

COUNTY IS PAID $257,590 GAS TAX

The coffers of the County Treasurer's office were increased $237,590.01 yesterday. Two checks were received by County Commissioners from State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis yesterday as the county's share of the state gasoline tax.

Under an act of 1927, the state receives three cents for each gallon of gasoline sold. Of this amount the county in which the gasoline is sold receives a half-cent per gallon.

The money received yesterday was the county's bonus for the six months ending July 31.

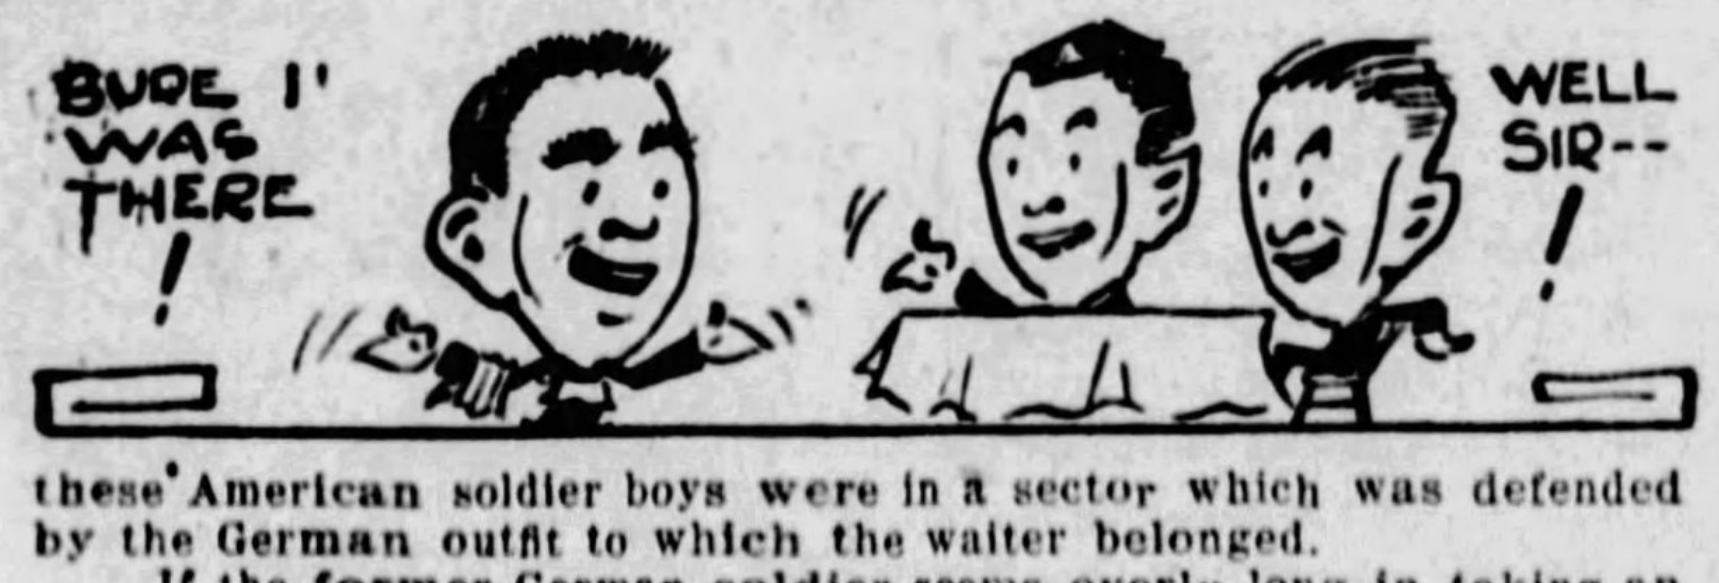
WAR wounds have healed, at least, in a Pittsburgh restaurant. The proprietor, John Vachetta, is a veteran of the Eightieth Division, and among his waiters are a former German soldier, an Austrian veteran, an Italian aviator and another Italian soldier.

At the table which the German soldier serves, a group of American Legionnaires have lunch from time to time. By a coincidence these American soldier boys were in a sector which was defended by the German outfit to which the waiter belonged.



BUDE I' WAS THERE !

If the former German soldier seems overly long in taking an order, the proprietor remarks: "They're fighting over an old battle."

With the Pittsburgh airport site selected, plans are now being made to form an aviation club in Pittsburgh—on the order of golf clubs. Only active, licensed pilots will be allowed to join. There will be facilities for parking the planes; there will be a clubhouse. There are several privately-owned planes here,—whose owners fly for the sport. One of them will enter a scheduled coast to coast race.

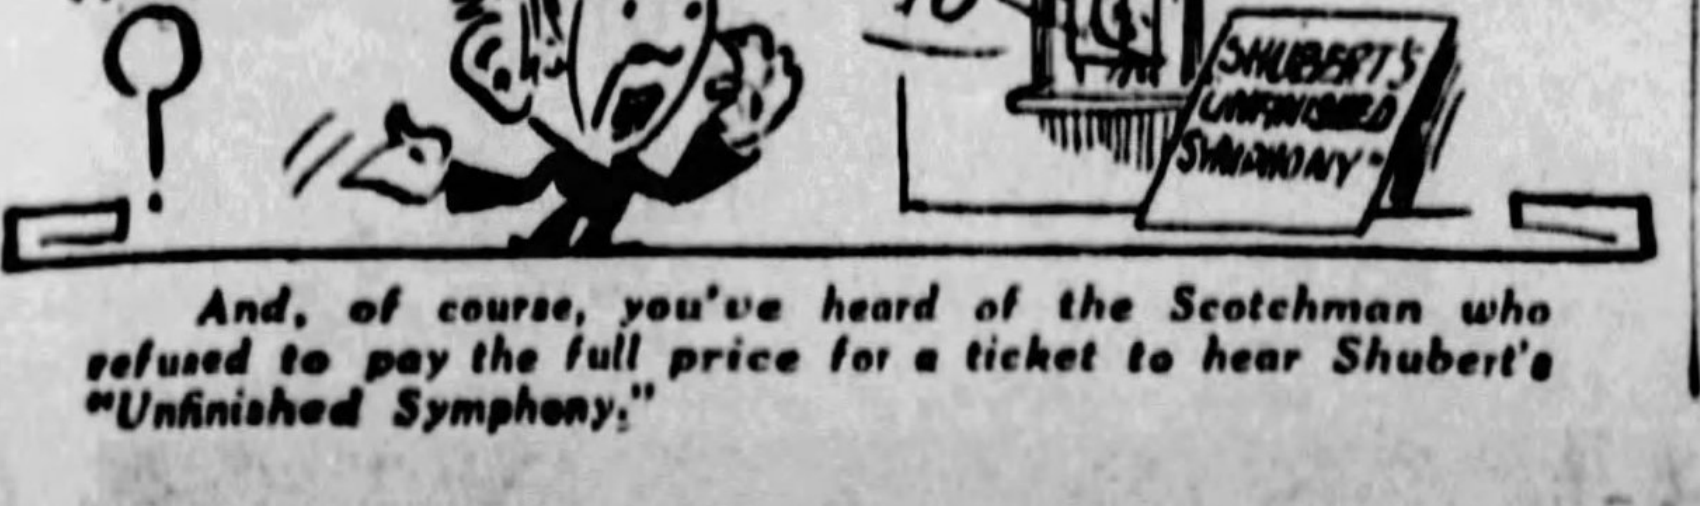
THEY tell of the aviator carrying a passenger who was a victim of hay fever. The pilot lost control and the plane went into a nose dive. As the plane tumbled down, the hay fever victim in an agitated voice yelled: "See if you can miss that field of golden rod, will you?"



And, of course, you've heard of the Scotchman who refused to pay the full price for a ticket to hear Shubert's "Unfinished Symphony."

HOOVER ON HIS WAY EAST

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—While Herbert Hoover was speeding eastward today, citizens of Los Angeles still were applauding his farewell speech of yesterday in which the Republican presidential nominee came out strongly in favor of the Boulder Dam project on the Colorado River.

Hoover spiked rumors that he would favor a compromise plan which would not develop the river to the fullest extent, when he said:

"I scarcely need repeat my support of that development which I have so often given during the last seven years. We want the greatest reservoir and the highest dam at Boulder Canyon that the engineers will recommend, and I am hopeful that the project will receive favorable action from the present Congress."

As the Swing-Johnson bill authorizing a high dam in Boulder Canyon already has been passed by the House and is the unfinished business in the Senate, Hoover's appeal for "favorable action from the present Congress," was received with joy by the millions of persons in this part of the country vitally interested in the project.

Southern California had been advised in advance that the Republican standard-bearer would discuss Boulder Dam. He was given a noisy reception by upwards of 125,000 persons as he left his special train and motored to the city hall to deliver his speech to the visible audience and the millions listening in over the radio.

A citizens' committee of 100 Republicans and Democrats, headed by Mayor George E. Cryer, extended the city's official welcome, but unofficial Los Angeles turned out en masse to welcome him to the southern part of his home state. He was hailed as the champion of Boulder Dam.

INSISTS GIRL SHOT HER

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Josephine Bono, 33, of 228 Fallowfield avenue, rear, took a turn for the worse after doctors had failed yesterday in an effort to remove a bullet, believed self-inflicted in a suicide attempt at her home.

Mrs. Bono contends that her pretty daughter, Angelina, 17, shot her, despite the fact that police have established to their satisfaction that the woman shot herself.

On the operating table, an instant before anesthetics were administered, Mrs. Bono refused to clear her daughter of the crime.

"If you die your daughter may be sent to a penitentiary for life," she was told by a surgeon as nurses poised the ether cone preparatory to the operation.

"I don't care," she said.

TARENTUM MAN "DEAD" 25 YEARS BACK HOME

Mourned as dead 25 years, J. Porter Wilson, member of a well known Allegheny valley family, yesterday walked into the office of his brother, Dr. Frank H. Wilson, in Tarentum, announced that he was still alive and prosperous and introduced his wife, Senora Wilson, of Santiago, Chile.

In 1898, J. Porter Wilson left his home in Tarentum to seek his fortune in Mexico. Five years later he was dangerously wounded and a newspaper in El Paso, Tex., carrying a news item of the shooting and stating that the victim had died, reached his family here.

Porter recovered and wrote several times to his relatives in Tarentum, but it is declared that the letters were intercepted. Hearing no word from his home, Wilson ceased writing and went to Chile where he was engaged in the cattle business. He established himself near Santiago and eventually married the beautiful Chilean woman who accompanied him home.

Senora Wilson speaks little English, but her husband, having lived in southern countries for 30 years, speaks Spanish fluently.

Sixth St. Bridge Sidewalk Ready Sept. 15

Pedestrians will be permitted to use the Sixth Street Bridge September 15, upon completion of the sidewalk on the west side of the bridge. A short time later the east sidewalk will be finished and it also will be put into use.

This announcement was made by County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, who yesterday inspected the bridge with Public Works Director Norman F. Brown. The Commissioner ordered ordered the work hurried.

BOARDER ARRESTED ON STORY OF GIRL

Andrew Friestick, 54, a boarder in the home of a Scott township resident, was committed to jail yesterday by Justice of the Peace Philip Hillen, of Heidelberg, charged with a serious offense against a 13-year-old daughter of his landlord. The girl fled to the home of her married sister who preferred the charge against Friestick. The mother, who tried to force her daughter to return home, was committed to jail for 20 days on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Form New Miners Union

The United Mine Workers of America, once the strongest union in the American Federation of Labor, is disintegrating, it was asserted here today, as preparations went forward for the formation of a new national miners' union.

Bitter against the administration of John L. Lewis, Philip Murray and Patrick T. Fagan because of the loss of the strike, disgruntled coal diggers of District No. 5, the Pittsburgh area, met in Walton Hall, Stanwix street, to arrange for representation at the national convention to be held here September 9, when the new miners' organization will be formed. Thomas Myerscough presided.

Bellaire district miners are meeting today for the same purpose. Similar conferences have been held, or will be held next week, in Kentucky, Indiana, Central Pennsylvania, the anthracite fields and West Virginia. Kansas and Missouri miners will meet on Labor Day.

At a meeting in Springfield, Ill., attended by 2,000 miners, Anthony Minerich, leader of the insurgents, debated with John W. Hindmarsh, an official in the Lewis administration, the question if it were not advisable to abandon the United Mine Workers' organization and form a new union.

SLAIN GIRL NOT FRIEND OF ROBBER

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Authorities faced an emigma today in their efforts to unravel the crime and identify the young woman whose charred body was found on a highway near Crown Point, Ind., Thursday.

While at first thought to be Adeline Zaccardo, missing sweetheart of a bank robber slain following a holdup Monday, the woman's identity remains uncertain. Police and county officers are abandoning the theory that other members of the bank robber gang might have slain Miss Zaccardo to prevent police from questioning her regarding the robbery.

The post-mortem examination revealed the dead woman had never given birth to a child, while the missing girl is the mother of two children. This, authorities said, offset the incomplete identification of clothing remnants made by the missing girl's relatives.

LOOKING FOR AUTO

A possible clew was under investigation with authorities seeking to find the owner of an automobile seen in the vicinity of the slaying Wednesday night. The town marshal of Dyer, near Crown Point, reported seeing a motor car with several strangely-acting persons in it. He took the license number, which he turned over to the investigators.

The body, shot through the head and burned beyond recognition, was found in a ditch. It appeared the slayer had poured gasoline on the clothing and set fire to the body after shooting the woman.

JACOB, COUNTY SOLICITOR'S AIDE, DIES

Attorney William C. Jacob, 39, for eight years an assistant county solicitor, died at 7:30 o'clock this morning in St. Francis Hospital, the result of an operation on Tuesday. He was a University of Pittsburgh graduate and was admitted to the bar in 1911. He resided at 355 South Atlantic avenue.

Mr. Jacob was an aviation instructor at Kelly Field, Tex., during the World War. When the city and county established Rodgers Field he was named to represent the county on the city-county airboard and was elected chairman of the board.

Robert E. Laedlein, acting president, Aero Club of Pittsburgh, when informed of Mr. Jacob's death, appointed an honorary committee to extend the club's condolences to Mr. Jacob's family.

Prosecutor Again Hits Conneaut Liquor

MEADVILLE, Pa., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Two automobiles, in which a quantity of alleged liquor was cached behind furniture, were seized by police here last night as they were about to enter Conneaut Lake Park. A. L. Convers, Edward Sauers and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, who gave Erie as their home, were arrested. The machines were confiscated. Police under the direction of Stuart A Culbertson, Crawford county district attorney, made the arrests.

LOGAN, BANKER, DIES IN MERCER HOSPITAL

REUBEN CLARK NAMED UNDER SECRETARY

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Selection by President Coolidge of Reuben Clark of Salt Lake City, Utah, to be Under Secretary of State, was announced at the summer White House yesterday. The Chief Executive has not yet signed Mr. Clark's commission, which is on its way here from Washington, but the latter has already accepted the position and only formalities remain before the new under secretary will take his oath of office and enter upon his duties.

President Coolidge regards Mr. Clark as one of the leading international lawyers of the country and therefore as specially suited for his new post.

Although he has served the United States in a variety of positions, Mr. Clark has proved himself especially valuable to the State Department, Mr. Coolidge was told, as general counsel to the American agent on the Mexican-American claim commissions and later in Mexico City where he went to help Ambassador Morrow negotiate for the renewal of the treaties under which the commissions functioned.

Benz Talks With Ione About a Position as Publicity Manager

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar, a music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, whom she later marries. She is always holding up as a model Ione's married sister, Jenepher, who has a small son and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimer's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley, where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed. Ione falls in love with Alan Blake, an accompanist, and they plan to be married as soon as Blake can support her. She is inclined to be jealous of Fluff Harwick, a new girl in the office. She feels that Jenepher is proving that a wife cannot hold down a job and run a household and do both successfully. She tries to be nice to Fluff, but the latter repulses her and she has her first quarrel with Blake on account of her. At Marie's house for dinner they learn all about a 50-50 marriage. Benz makes further plans to advance Ione.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.

UP IN the woodland lot the brook had broken its icy prison when Ione went out one Sunday morning in search of pussy willows.

The water tinkled like running silver coins and there was a mildness in the air, soft breath of the earth stirring in its winter sleep.

She filled her arms with gay fluffs. Delicate things, bravely heralding the spring.

Beyond the trees she could see Highmont road sloping over the hill and the red chimney of the Elliott bungalow. She strolled down that way, wondering if Marie and Pal would be deep in their week-end housekeeping.

But her knock was answered by a joyful hail; she opened the door upon the two of them in the over-stuffed chair. Marie was curled up on her husband's lap; he was looking especially chesty and Marie seemed to be touched by a furious exaltation.

"Such a pair of love birds! Hope I'm not intruding?"

"Oh, come in, Io. What adorable pussies! We were just planning sort of"— She looked at Pal; he kissed her suddenly and got up, holding her in his arms a moment before he put her down tenderly.

"Tell her, Mae—do." He stamped out, whistling.

Marie said, "The lamb! I'm going to give up the job in a week or two."

"Why, you like it so! Pal going back on the bargain? Too bad—"

"Stupid! It's life going back on us. A one-sided bargain anyway, all said and done. We're going to have a baby."

"Marie! Oh, truly—but I see how pleased you are. I'm glad for you, darling."

"You're wondering how we'll manage, Io. With payments due on the wonderful home and not a cent saved. You think I'd better be worrying a bit? Honestly, I can't. I feel as if we are fulfilling a mighty law and the law will take care of us."

"You're lovely. You're different from Jenepher; she felt it a hardship to give up."

"I'm not giving up for good. Jenepher did manage well, didn't she? When my baby is old enough I am going to get the best nurse in the world and go back to work. Just till we're on our feet, you know. I'll be out a year, maybe, but that's not long in a lifetime."

Trying to bargain again with life, she was not yet aware that life will not trade.

Marie was never again to go back to work.

When spring was a green mist on Lyall, Ione worth a bunch of wood violets, blue as her eyes, to the office one morning.

Excitment ran like a current under the wonted smooth flow of work. Emma Shepherd came into the dressing room with the stealthy look of one about to impart big news.

"Have you heard, Io? Papa Weimar is going to open a branch in the building next door. Under a different name and they'll put out music he doesn't want to handle here. Some good jobs for the ones that speak first. Who do you suppose is going to manage it?"

"Well, who, Emma? You seem to know all about it."

"Only wish I did! They say Eddie Benz may be transferred."

Ione heard that with a shock of dismay. If Eddie left what would happen to all her own bright prospects? Through his help she was doing so well; another might not take the interest and push her along to opportunity.

She went to him apprehensively, stood at his side. "It's not true that you're going away? Why"—

"You'd care, Ione?" He put his hand over hers and pressed her palm down hard against the desk. "Miss me some?"

"Of course! Nothing the same—but it's not true?"

He was in and out all day; there was no chance for a word. Toward evening he telephoned her to meet him at a theater up Broadway. He was waiting outside in his car. She got in and made no protest when he headed across the ferry and up country.

"So nothing would be the same if I left, my dear! You told me a great deal this morning: more than you're willing to have me know."

"Indeed, I didn't. I want you to believe how grateful I am for all you've done. You've put me over, you see." She laughed teasingly. "The same as you'd promote a song you've put me over."

The dark, vital face turned to her, eyes searching her gentle beauty. "Is that all? Be honest now, Ione. Would you miss me only for the help I can give you?"

And when she was silent, chin down, "You won't say? I thought . . . But I'll wait. Some time you'll come and put your arms around me: I think of that. Say the thing I want to hear. 'You were right, Eddie; I've always loved you.' A dazzling thought. You're happy? Anything I can do to make you happier?"

"Just go on being my friend, please."

"That's not easy. Your two hands held up between us, always pushing me back. Even the hours you give me doled out charily."

They went to Sunset Inn again—pulled a table up to the logs blazing against the chill of early springs—drank a goblet of the steaming, spiced wine.

It all seemed very tender to Ione, and very romantic. She wondered, with a sinking at her heart, what it would be like not to see him any more. Never to feel his genial presence, the stimulating sense of ambition he brought her.

He began to talk of the office. "I'll probably supervise the new branch, but I'm not going to move. There'll be a manager appointed.

"How would you like a little office of your own now? Run the publicity department all by yourself? You could bring me the knotty problems. As a regular thing you're quite capable of managing alone."

She flushed with pride, face all vivid, hands eager. But in that instant the memory of Alan's words came cutting across her joy. "A girl has all the best of it, starting in business. Ways open to feminine charm; a young and lovely smile—"

"Why do you do this for me, Eddie?" She was trembling, struggling with the fear that she might cry. "Just friendship, is it? You're sure I could do the work?"

He said, brusquely, "Who is it envies you, Ione? You'd open your mind to poison?

"Let me tell you, then, that few jobs are handed out through friendship. Business soon would go to smash if that were so. Don't make a mistake. Much as I wish you well, I'd not have turned a finger if I hadn't seen your ability.

"Perhaps you don't realize that it is to the advantage of the Weimar shop to put someone like you in a new department and let you grow up together. Plenty of experts to be had but none would feel the same interest. Opportunity for you, but one you will have to earn.

"Get out of your head any ulterior motive. That is cheap and unworthy of you."

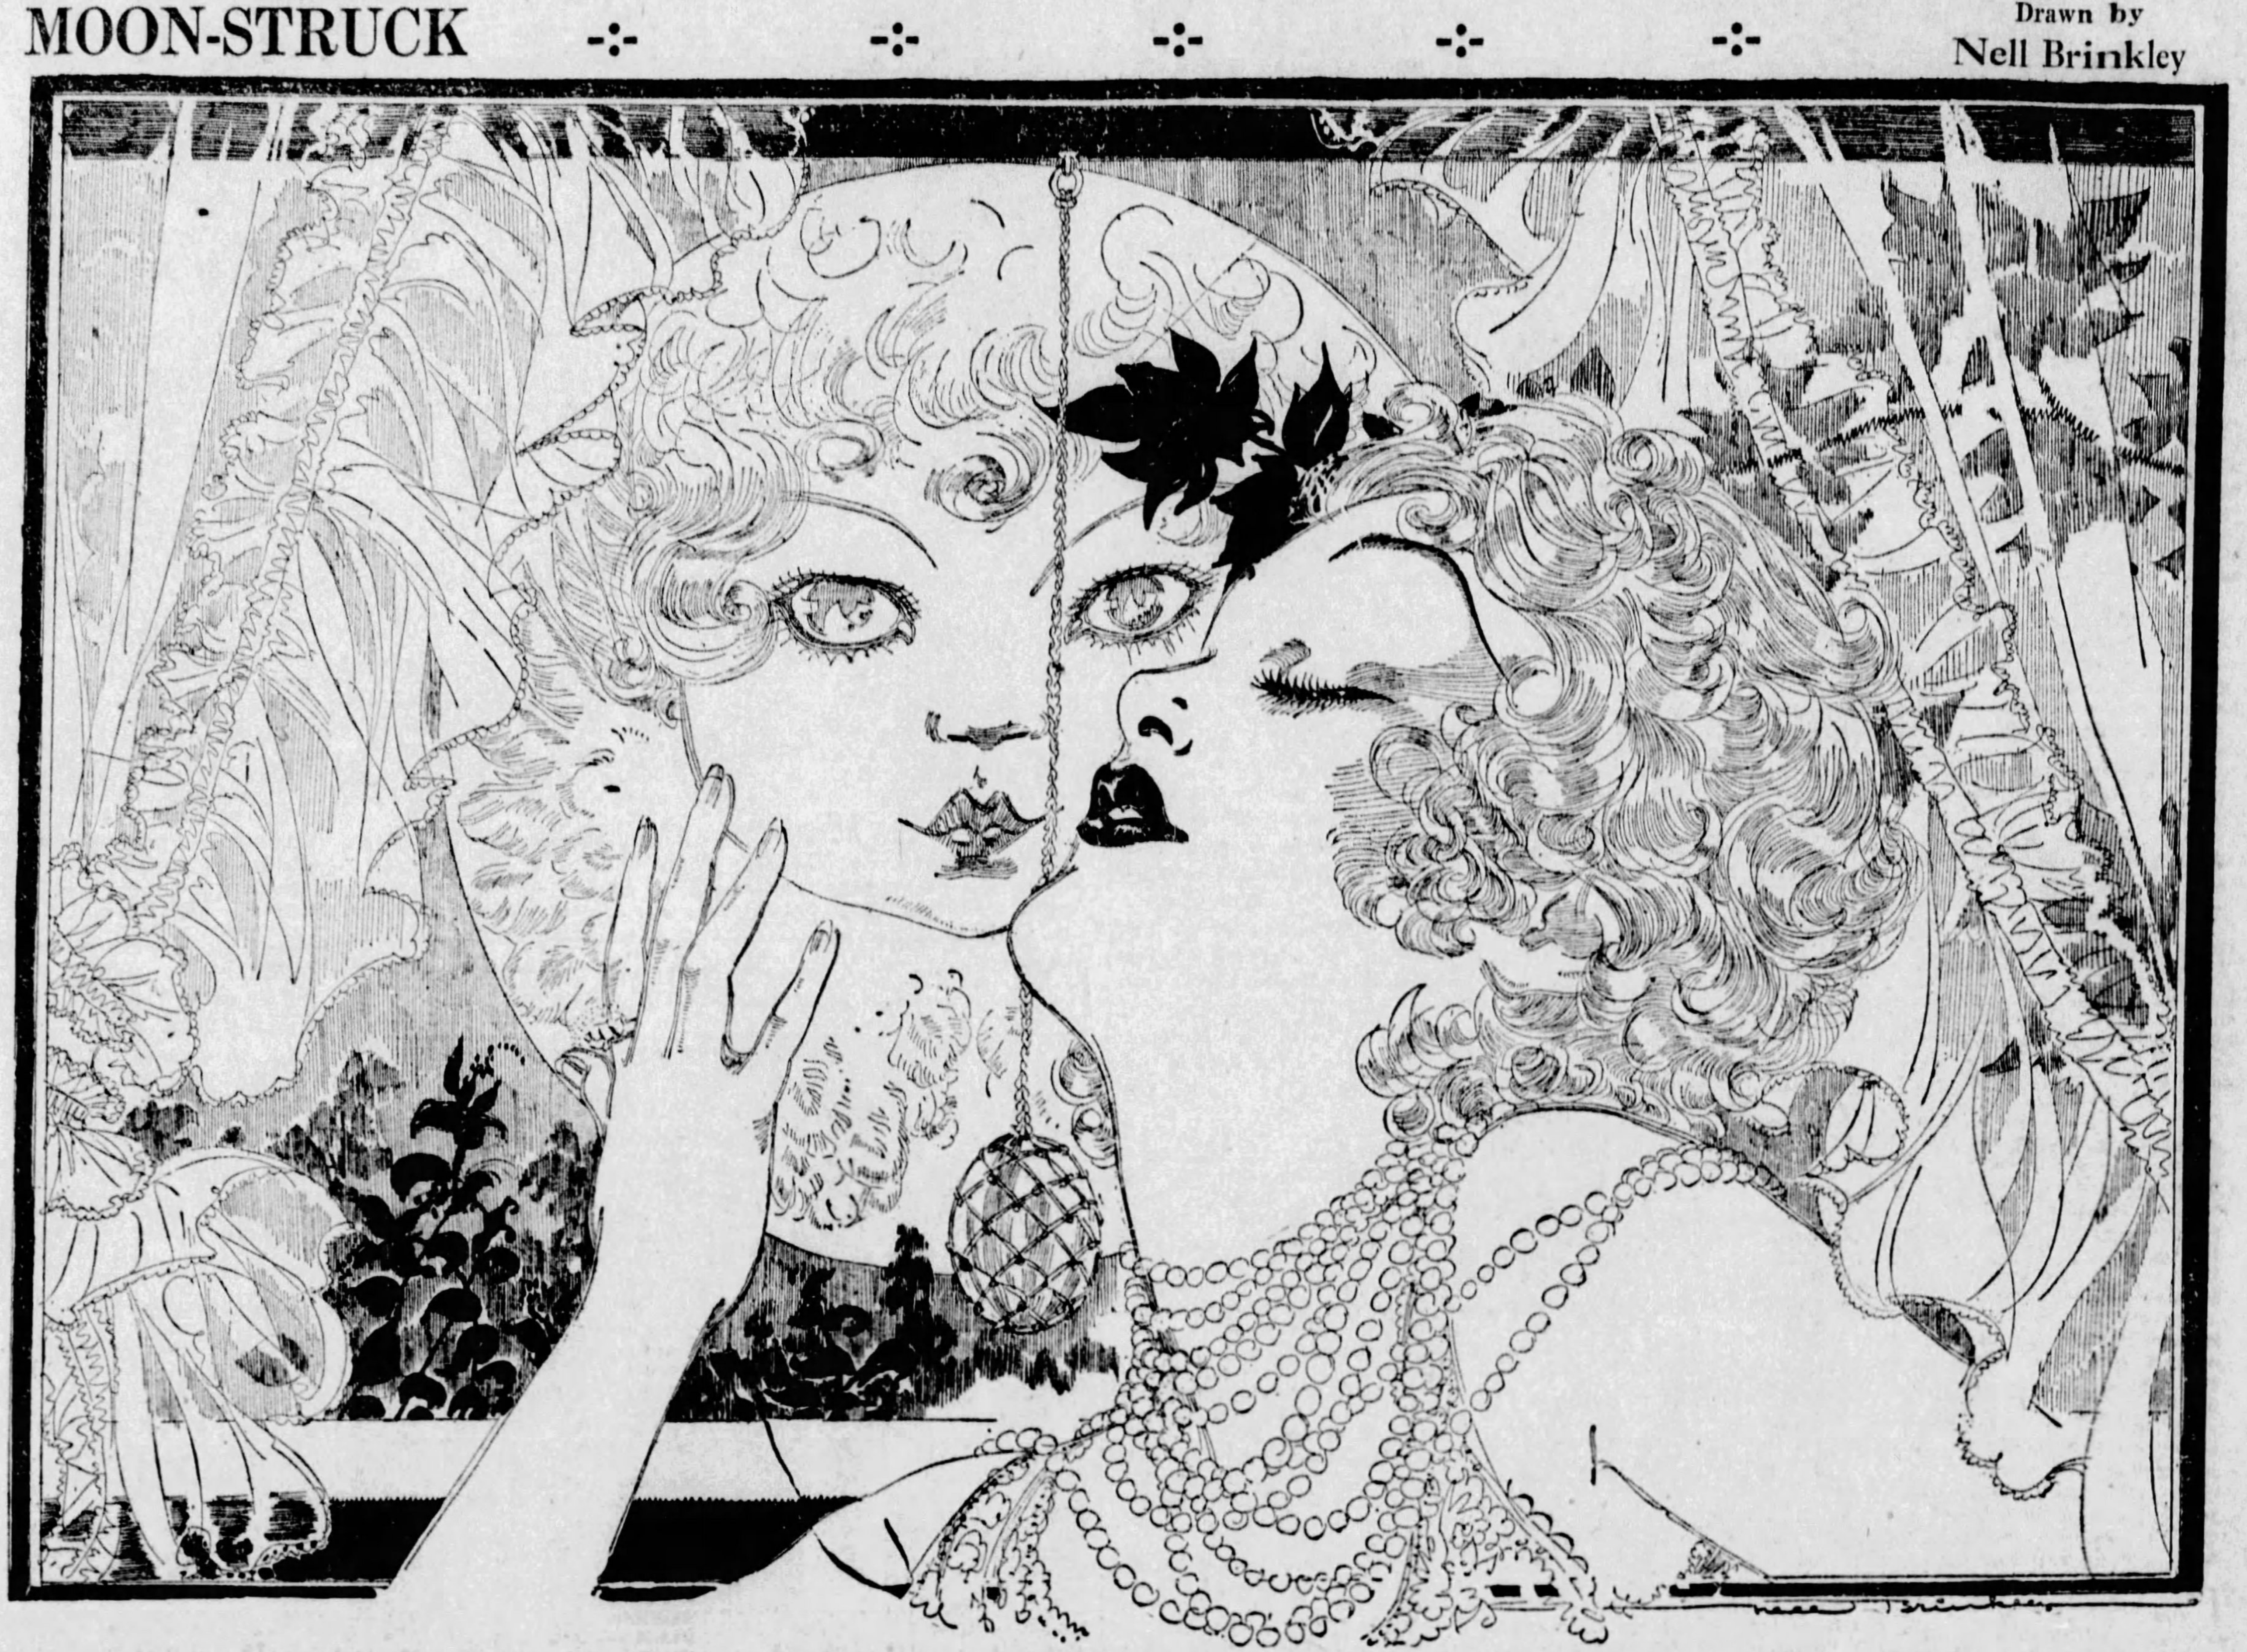
MOON-STRUCK

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



AN OLD saying reads that he who sleeps with his face in the moonshine is never right in his mind thereafter. He may go joyously around—he may tend ably to his affairs—he may read and write and "add" and be able to criticize, quarrel and love, as before. But he now belongs to the changeling crowd; he is addled; people secretly tap their foreheads when he goes by; he is moonstruck! So many a man in the hot countries moves his bed when he finds a band of magic silver light across it! Fearing lunacy.

There IS magic in the moon's light and mystery in the sound of its name; and everybody feels a bit of a lunatic when they lift their eyes—and their souls with them—from the earth to the strange silver globe high above the trees. The moon silences the head after too long a contemplation, and speaks to the heart. Some one said once "the devil's in the moon for mischief." And we know who he is—if that is so.

No other but LOVE. Speaking to the heart—silencing the head. Looking at his shadowy eyes and lips you forget that you first wondered about the "silver ship in the sky" in a scientific way. The real wonder and mystery of it is lost and mingled in the spell wrought by its wizardry. The mountains and valleys lose shape and reform into the face of Cupid, god of mischief, mystery and beauty, dispenser of lunacy, true MAN IN THE MOON.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

WOMAN—THE CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

MY Son, strange and wondrous are the ways of women.

• • •

And he that thinketh to translate their moods and foretell their doings by a simple rule is as one that seeketh to read the secrets of the stars through an opera glass.

• • •

For men are as a row of suburban bungalows. To have known one man well, is to know all men by heart.

• • •

But women are as the Yale lock. No two of them are alike, but each a different combination, with a different key.

HELEN ROWLAND

Yet until a MAN cometh her way, a woman is simple and as easy to read as a child's primer.

• • •

For, verily, the effect of the moon upon the tide is no more mystifying nor unacountable than the effect of love upon a woman. She that was more artless than a babe, becometh suddenly a cross-word puzzle, full of surprises, complexes and subtility.

• • •

And from each woman in his life a man learneth something NEW!

Lo, one woman sigheth to know HOW to make a man love her, and bewaileth the lost power of spells and love-potions.

• • •

And another woman seeketh to know how to choose among the many men who love her and bewaileth only her own vacillation.

• • •

One woman yearneth to sacrifice herself and all her desires for the man she loveth. And another preferreth to sacrifice her lover for her whims and desires.

• • •

But today, yesterday and forever, the reason why a woman loveth any man is because, in her heart, she knoweth that he loveth HER.

• • •

The sheik hath said, "Go to. I understand all women!"

• • •

But, verily, verily, he that understandeth all the complexes of ONE woman, knoweth as much as it is given unto any man to KNOW in a lifetime! SELAH.

Horoscopes

Sunday, August 19

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds a hint of benefits to clergy and ecclesiastical matters and also benevolent institutions and dispensations. It also points to pleasant and profitable adventures in heart and home affairs, but there is a menace generally of duplicity or intrigue. Be on guard and sign letters carefully.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a generally prosperous and progressive year, with business flourishing and personal matters pleasant. They are warned of some prospect of fraud, treachery or intrigue.

A child born on this day may be steady and perservering and may have many talents and graces fitting it for success, but it should keep under control some inclinations to subtlety and craftiness.

Monday, August 20

MONDAY'S astrological forecast intimates much manipulation and machinations, judging by the many angles in which the subtle and intriguing Neptune holds sway. It is a time for diplomacy and secret arrangements with negotiations with close corporations, "rings" or secret orders, as these flourish by strategem rather than straightforwardness.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of success in dealing with secret societies, corporations or where strategy and machinations bring results.

A child born on this day may have many talents and peculiar qualities fitting it for success in such matters as require subtlety and diplomacy. It may have a spectacular career.

At Last—Some New Light on Asthma

ASTHMA is a strange disease. It is so freakish in its effects and is so difficult to handle that hundreds of "asthma cures" have been placed on the market.

DR. COPELAND

This is not surprising, for the medical profession was baffled for years. In the meantime, the poor sufferers continued to endure the agonies of the disease.

During the past few years we have learned that some persons have a remarkable sensitiveness to certain substances. It is now believed that many cases of asthma are produced by the inhalation of one of many such substances.

The medical profession has come to understand that every asthma patient must be studied as an individual. What will help one is useless for another.

In studying the means of relief the first thing is to find the exciting cause. What do you suppose are some of the irritating substances?

Well, rabbit's hair is one. Immediately you will say: "How in the world could I have come in contact with rabbit hair? I haven't seen a rabbit for 40 years!"

The hair of Australian rabbits is a common filling for pillows. Likewise, rabbit fur is dyed and used in making neckpieces.

It is not uncommon to find a person who is never free from asthma in one house and never has it when he visits the home of a relative. This might be accounted for by the presence and use of rabbit hair pillows in the one house and feather pillows in the other.

I read of one victim who was found to be sensitive to the dust of her own home. There was something in it which appeared to excite the attacks of asthma. This might be because of the admixture with the dust of particles of wool or other substance from one particular rug.

But there are other ways of getting the irritating material into the system besides breathing it. Certain protein foods are poisonous to the susceptible. By careful testing the offending food substance is found. Relief follows its exclusion from the diet.

Hay fever is like asthma, but it appears to be caused by the pollen of certain plants and grasses. Goldenrod, roses, timothy hay, rag weed and other plants are carriers of the pollen which brings on the attacks.

Fortunately only a small percentage of persons are subject to asthma and hay fever. Every victim must be studied carefully to find the particular factor responsible for his agony.

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Believes Noel Wants to Marry Eleanor

"ALL right! Cards on the table," Lillian exclaimed when I proposed comparing notes upon the explanation of Philip Veritzen's conditions to Mary Harrison, which we each had written down for future mutual inspection a few days before.

"I wrote down but a single sentence," I said, send the car along a little faster as in the mirror I saw the advancing lights of the utility car behind us which Jim was driving. "It was this—Mr. Veritzen has told Mary she could continue her career as his dramatic protegee only on condition that she shut Noel permanently from her life."

"I didn't put it in quite such poetic language," Lillian gibed, "but mine meant the same. It was quite plain today to anybody interested as we are. But—am I right in thinkig you have some more definite knowledge?"

"Yes, you are," I said slowly, "although I really have no right to tell you. But I know Noel wouldn't object to your knowing, and as for Mary, the poor child is so utterly miserable anyway, that I'm sure our knowledge wouldn't disturb her."

"All right," Lillian said impatiently, "the ethics of the thing having been settled, go ahead and speak the rest of the piece."

I flushed at her gibing as I always do, and hurried into the recital of Noel's interview with Mary which I unwittingly had overheard, and of the talk I had had with Noel afterward. I had barely finisher when we reached the farmhouse, and she whispered hurriedly as she climbed down from the car:

"I'll be over to your room after everybody's settled down for the night. Wait for me."

I was so tired that I was almost asleep when her knock sounded upon the door, but my fatigue vanished at her first astonishing words.

"Do you know the way I've got this doped out?" she demanded. "Phil Veritzen's determined to marry Noel to Eleanor Lincoln. Why, Heaven only knows, and the information bureau's closed. But that's the notion he's got into that mulish old dome of his, and he'll sacrifice all his in-laws and everybody else to carry his point. He's had experience with Noel's obstinacy before, so he's going comparatively light in that direction, although Noel's spiel to you today would indicate that his father is throwing out a few trolling lines on the subject. But of course he has an absolute cinch with Mary. When Love and Ambition clash with that young woman, Love has no chance a-tall, a-tall."

"Did it ever occur to you," I said hesitantly, "that he might have traded upon Love as well as upon Ambition in Mary's case?"

She looked up at me in startled fashion, waited a long half minute before answering.

"I see your point," she said at last. "You think the old devil may have made it plain to Mary that he would as ruthlessly destroy Noel's future as hers, if the friendship between them should continue. I wouldn't put it past him. When he sets out to get anything he wants, he's absolutely ruthless to a certain point. He has his own code and rigidly adheres to it. But it doesn't keep him from spoiling an idyllic little romance without any compunction whatever."

She stopped and snapped her fingers in irritated fashion.

"That's that," she said with finality. "We know now where he stands on the subject of Noel and Mary and Eleanor Lincoln. But why does he want that girl for Noel's wife? That's the question I've got to answer before I can straighten out a puzzle which has dynamite and TNT streaked all through it. Don't forget to keep your eyes wide open whenever Eleanor Lincoln is in your offing, and keep a mental record of your discoveries for my looking-over."

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Drop in Production and Price May Cost Penn Mex Dividend. Western Michigan Gas Field Promising.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A further decline in production and lower prices for bunker fuel oil make it unlikely that the directors of the Penn Mex Fuel Company will take any further action on dividends.

The appearance of sediment three months ago made it necessary to pinch in oil production in the Alamo field in Mexico from 21,000 barrels a day to about 6,000 barrels.

An active drilling campaign is still under way. Wells in eight locations are being drilled.

FOLLOWING the settlement of two years of litigation with the owners of properties leased, the Penn Mex Fuel Company was able to move its storage oil to the coast and to resume drilling activity.

This enabled the company to pay a dividend of $1.25 a share on May 31.

This was the first dividend since April 21, 1925, when an initial payment of 50 cents was made.

THE South Penn Oil Company owns 55 per cent of the stock of the Penn Mex Fuel Company. Its share in the last dividend was $275,000. This was equivalent to 34 cents a share on the 800,000 shares of South Penn Oil capital stock.

THE extent of the decline in the popularity of the touring car is not generally realized. The figures for motor vehicles in the census of manufacturers for 1927 show that more than 1,000,000 touring cars were made in 1925. Last year only 211,000 rolled from the assembly line.

The smart appearance of sport roadsters tended to keep this type of open car in the public favor, but even here there was a sharp decline.

The rise of the closed car got under way about 1921 when 21 per cent of the passenger machines were closed. Last year 85 per cent of the cars made were coaches, coupes, sedans and other closed models.

THIS change in public taste is closely akin to what may be expected in airplanes. Our pioneer automobilists scorned the closed car. They drove for a thrill and wanted to feel the wind in their faces.

Today automobiles have left the thrill class and are a mere convenience. Comfort and appearance have become the dominant factors.

RADIO is travelling the same road.

Where is the man who used to sit up till 4 in the morning trying to get Cuba? The mystery of taking any kind of noise out of the air is gone.

Today our radio must be an attractive piece of furniture which supplies genuine entertainment. The fact that music comes from San Francisco no longer adds to its appeal.

WE are still able to get a kick out of the airplane. We are still willing to pay $5 just for the thrill of sailing over tree tops for an instant. We still gasp at non-stop flights and endurance records. But that day is going, too.

The airplane may become a commonplace in travel between cities even more quickly than other wonders of yesterday.

WESTERN MICHIGAN promises to become a factor in the production of natural gas in large commercial quantities. In the vicinity of Muskegon a production of 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day has been developed.

Oil strikes have also been made which are yielding a fair production. About 2,250 barrels a day are being taken from the field.

On August 13 a gas well was completed in the Muskegon field with a flow of over 18,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day. This was more than twice the flow of any previous completions.

STARTING at a distance of four miles north of Muskegon completions have been made as far as 40 miles to the north and 45 miles to the northeast which indicates tha there is a very large area to be developed.

R. A. Smith, Michigan state geologist, has told the Michigan Utilities Commission that the formation from which the wells are flowing is similar to some which have produced for as long as 65 years.

NARROW PRICE CHANGES IN OTHER LOCAL STOCKS

The week-end session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange was a quiet affair, with volume of trading showing no material change from the week's average turnover and prices holding close to the previous finals.

The advance in Columbia Gas, in progress in the New York market since Tuesday, continued today and resulted in the establishment of another new high record for the shares. Traders here are of the opinion that Columbia will be split up and that higher dividends will be paid on the new stock. In connection with the rumored Columbia split, there is a feeling here that the company will later acquire the Lone Star Gas properties. However, the failure of Lone Star to follow the Columbia movement is rather perplexing to those holding the consolidation opinion, and Lone Star's apparently water-logged condition around 52 is causing some nervousness. It is said, though, that the larger holdings of Lone Star are intact and that the holders are well satisfied with the company's outlook regardless of whether the reported Columbia deal materializes or not.

Arkansas common and preferred were traded in in moderate volume this morning, but ranged very close to yesterday's average quotations. National Fireproofing preferred appeared on the board at 17 for three odd lots, unchanged from the last previous price.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—With harvest weather in Canada auspicious, wheat prices have averaged lower today during the early dealings. Relative firmness of Liverpool wheat quotations, however, tended to bring about rallies. Opening at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, Chicago wheat later kept near to the initial range. Corn developed strength, starting unchanged to ½c higher, and then easing a little, but subsequently showing upturns all around, with September in the lead. Oats were easy. Provisions advanced.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 12 to 22 points and soon showed net losses of 20 to 22 points under selling which was attributed largely to commission house liquidation and incuding some selling from the South.

October and December sold off to 18.65c and January to 18.60c under this initial pressure, which was encouraged by relatively easy Liverpool cables, but continued crop complaints and reports of boll weevil damage brought in some buying at the decline. This proved sufficient to absorb the offerings and steady prices, which showed rallies of 10 to 15 points from the lowest at the end of the first half hour.

Private cables said there had been continental and Bombay selling in the Liverpool market and that the turnover in cloths and yarns was slow with buyers cautious.

NEWS AND VIEWS

C. E. Mitchell on Money.

C. E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, New York, says he expects to see call money hold around 6½ per cent on the average during autumn period, and has no fear that Federal Reserve authorities plan any drastic action against stock market so long as credit demands do not interfere with requirements of commerce and industry.

Fall Trade Speeding Up.

Bradstreet's Weekly Trade Review says: Accentuation of the activities in fall trade hitherto noted; further slight gains in industrial lines; continuance of the remarkable progress by the cereal crops, which first became markedly visible in July and, aided by high temperatures; the pushing of sales of seasonal goods at retail through the medium of clearance sales, constitute the high lights of the week's reports. The one notable exception to this slow, but steady, progress toward improvement over the reactionary trends present a year ago is found in the southeastern quarter of the country. Where tropical storms, accompanied by high winds and very heavy rainfall, have checked business progress, damaged the corn, cotton and fruit crops, flooded wide areas and interfered with highway and railway operations. In the industries the big features have been a slight speeding up of operations at iron and steel mills, with accompanying announcements of higher prices among finished lines for fourth quarter delivery of steel sheets. Not less important seems to have been the heavier volume of pig iron buying at a few large centers and a very general advance in steel scrap prices. In the automobile trade, a new peak point has been reached in employment at the largest manufacturing center. Weekly bank clearings, $9,266,599,000, a decrease of 7 per cent from a year ago.

Hoover Practically "In"—Durant.

W. C. Durant, sailing for Europe last night on the Ile de France, said "now that the Federal Reserve has abandoned its attempt to influence the stock market by regulating brokers' loans and forcing liquidation, an outrageous and unwarranted procedure we can once more enjoy a normal market and reasonable money rates, which means, if I am not greatly mistaken, very much higher prices for good securities. With Hoover's election practically assured, we have a right to expect a continuance of the remarkable prosperity which we have enjoyed for the past four years."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Trading was light and price changes small in the bond market today. Tightening of money rates again served to restrict interest and there was evidence of a downward tendency throughout the list.

A few industrials, however, were supported. Shell Union 6s moved up more than a point and Dodge Brothers 6s improved fractionally under continued demand. A few utilities also sought higher levels, prominent among them American Telephone and Telegraph 5½s.

The St. Paul issues were most active among the rails, their firmness reflecting the buoyancy of the stocks. Illinois Central 4¾s were under pressure.

The foreign list was steady. U. S. government bonds were inclined to be soft, although several issues held steady.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Transactions in the moost active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dolars):

STOCKS TRAVEL IRREGULAR COURSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved irregularly at the opening of today's market. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, Frank G. Shattuck and Canadian Pacific. Hupp advanced fractionally, but most of the other motors were heavy.

Encouraged by the optimistic statements of several business men, who sailed for Europe last night, pool operators resumed their buying campaign in a number of special stocks, and soon turned the general course of prices upward. Columbia Gas advanced 1½ points to 119½, a new peak, on rumors of a four-for-one split-up with a $2 dividend on the new stock. Allied Chemical, Grand Union preferred and Eaton Axle also moved into new high ground.

Low priced rails started forward under the leadership of the St. Paul issues. Merchandising issues also presented several points of strength, with early gains of a point or so in Sears-Roebuck, Kroger Stores and May Department Stores. Fresh buying developed in U. S. Steel common, which quickly advanced a point. Warner Brothers A and Chrysler were heavy at the start.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, with sterling cables quoted around $4.85⅝.

AUTOIST'S BAIL PARED $2,950

Bail of $3,000, which police demanded of Julius Marazar on a reckless driving charge following the injury of three men in Fifth avenue near Soho street, was cut to $50 by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan. The court explained that the bail demanded on such a charge was excessive.

Marazar, gymnasium employe of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, was arrested early Tuesday after his auto had crashed into a gang of workmen, injuring three. After he had been committed to jail on the reckless driving charge, an information charging aggravated assault and battery and driving while under the influence of liquor was made before Magistrate George H. England, City Solicitor Diamond told the court.

Court Prompt to Right Parole Made on Fraud

The public will commend Judge Harry H. Rowand for the promptness with which he rectified what appeared to be a miscarriage of justice in the parole of Jack McKenzie, Third Ward, serving a sentence as a ballot cheater, convicted as one of the developments of wholesale corruption at the polls.

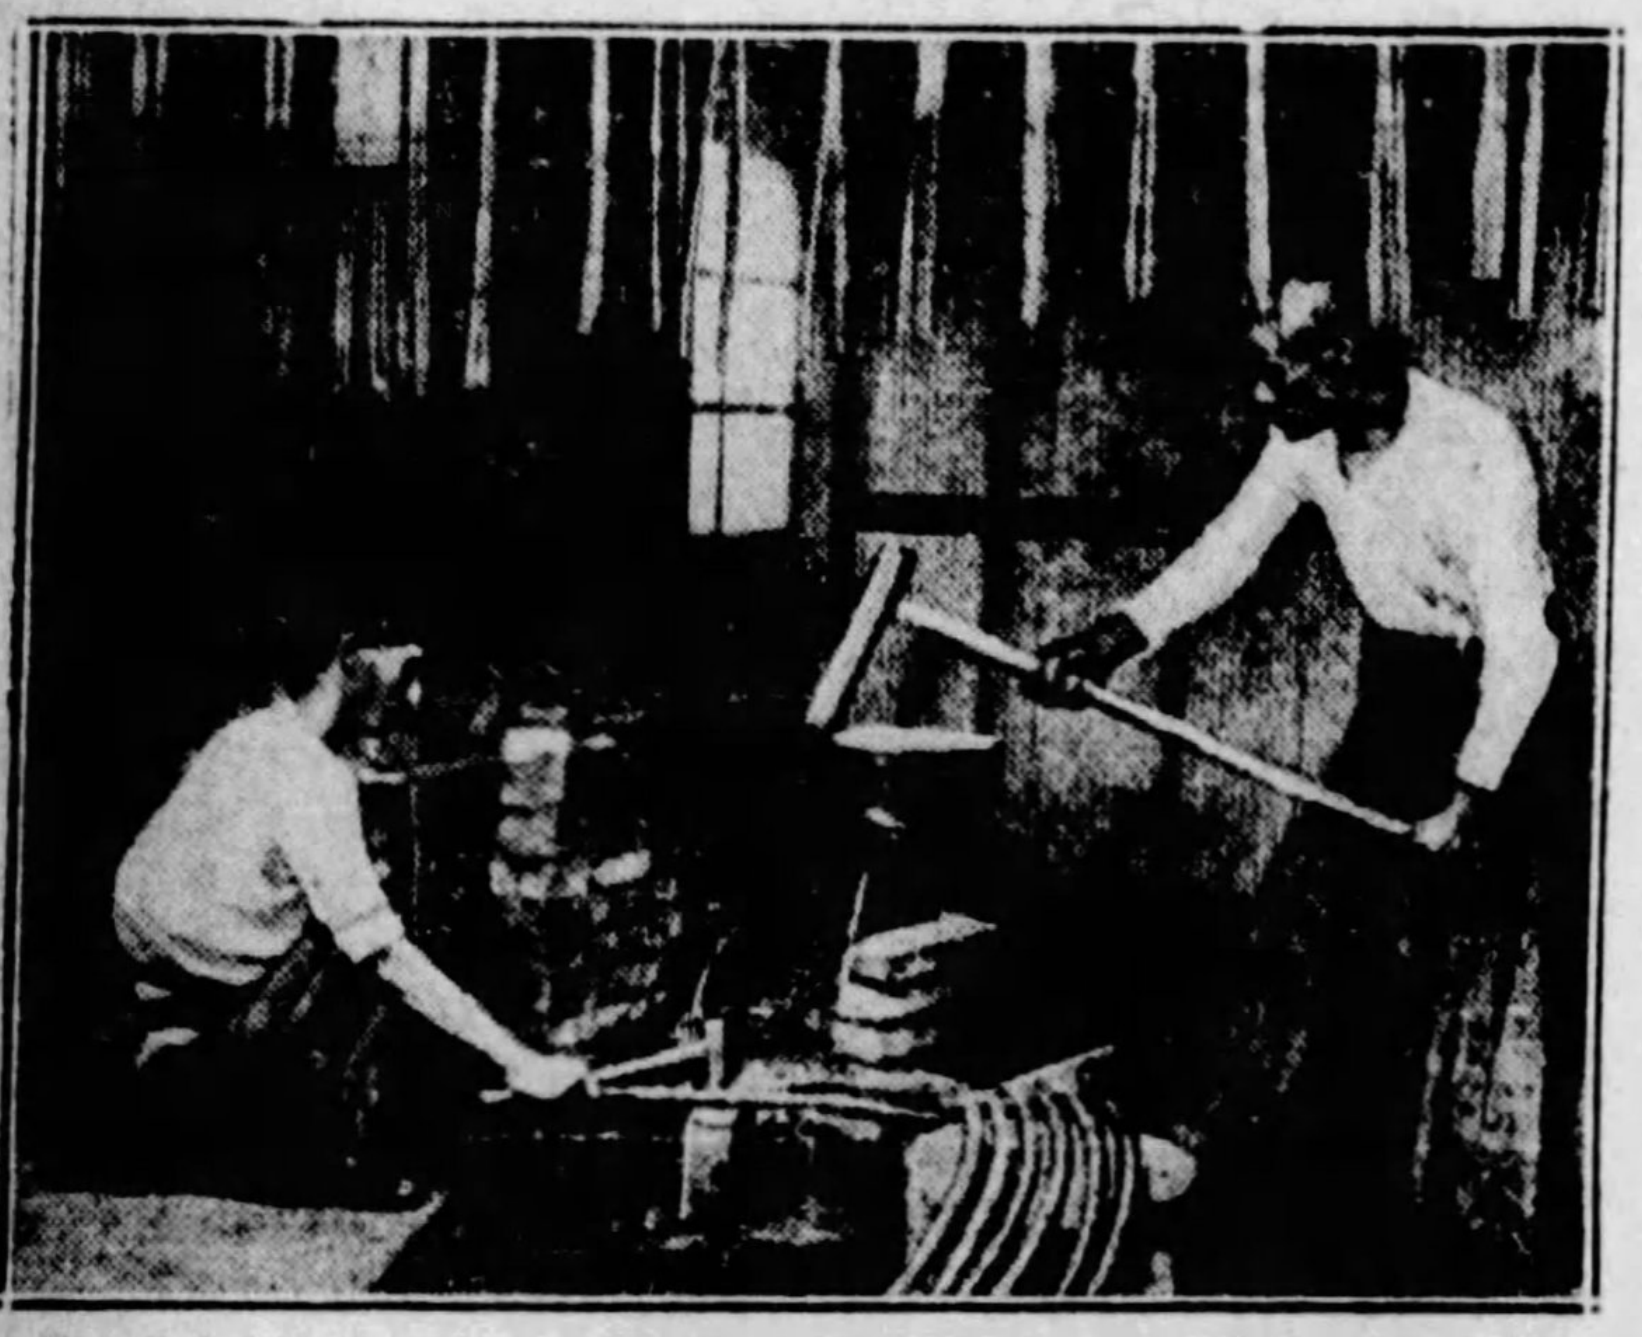
Congressman Harry Estep, attorney for McKenzie, had represented to the court that McKenzie was suffering from a toe injury that could not be effectively treated in jail. His parole resulted. The jail physician and John McNeill, warden, made statements relative to the case that caused Judge Rowand to suspect misrepresentation had been made, so he ordered an investigation, with the effect that McKenzie has been returned to jail to complete his sentence. The court absolved Mr. Estep from any culpability on the ground that he, too, had acted on misrepresentations.

The public, however, will expect the district attorney's office to be a little more on its toes hereafter when leniency for a prisoner is proposed. Citizens had thought the scandal about the pardoning of Albert Carelli, convicted as a gangster murderer, would have made that office a little more alert, and they are not especially pleased when they see a prisoner of McKenzie's status walk out of jail without official protest. There is a responsibility to society that must be upheld and it rests upon our officers to be watchful at all times.

Fortunately, Judge Rowand was quick to grasp the significance of the situation and just as quick to prevent the success of what appears to have been an attempt at gross fraud.

A Sword for the Emperor

It Really Will Be "Finest Steel."



THE EMPEROR'S SWORD.

Here you see Kyusuke Mori, famous sword maker of Japan, hammering out and tempering steel for the ceremonial sword to be used in the coronation of the new Emperor. He has been Emperor for some time, but Japan in these great matters proceeds slowly in dignified fashion.

Kyusuke Mori, like many others following important trades in Japan, inherits his knowledge of steel making from ancestors going back through centuries.

Hammering and hammering hour after hour, the sword will be tempered, and the impurities will be hammered out of the steel, until perfectly pure metal is produced.

What interests United States steel men is the fact that such steel is actually better than any steel made in a wholesale way, with the Bessemer furnace or otherwise.

There are gates in England hammered out in this fashion that do not rust, even after centuries of exposure.

And this Japanese sword left out of doors beside a piece of ordinary "high grade" steel would keep its edge while the other steel would go.

It is the constant prolonged hammering that gets rid of all the impurities and reduces the blade to "pure" steel.

However, there is ahead of us the greatest steel development of all, namely, steel made by the electric process. The United States Steel Company and others are working at it, although they seem to be a little slow in getting started.

This process will save fuel, produce pure steel without all the slow hammering, by a process so simple that a child might have invented it. And, MOST IMPORTANT, it will make available for use gigantic deposits of iron practically worthless because of the amount of sulphur or other impurities that the iron contains,

Iron deposits in Japan are of little value for treatment by modern methods, although a patient Japanese can hammer pure steel out of them.

The electric process of steel manufacture will probably make Japan independent of our steel manufacturers.

Important to the United States is the fact that this process will bring into use enormous beds of metallic sand along the Pacific Coast, numerous and almost inexhaustible, between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

California, from having no steel manufacturers to speak of, may have a gigantic steel industry and be made independent of the rest of the world as regards steel.

Little coal is required for production by the new process. Electricity, after the ore is pulverized, separates the absolutely pure iron, picking it up on magnetic plates.

The fact that the iron need not be exposed to intense heat is also a great advantage.

There is much meaning in this little picture, with the Japanese hammering out the Emperor's sword.

Here in America we won't have a man hammering it out, but the electric power of the lightning will pick it up in microscopic specks, taking up the iron only, leaving the rest.

When You Buy Gasoline

Some of Your Money Is Made Useful.

Noguchi, Japanese scientist, a learned and truly great man, died in South Africa, killed by yellow fever, the disease that he was fighting.

Fortunately, his widow, who inherits no fortune from her distinguished husband, will be provided for by the Rockefeller Institute with which Prof. Noguchi was associated.

E. B. Smith, head of the institute, said: "The thing is automatic. All the members of the staff are protected in the same way." It may comfort you, when buying Standard Oil gasoline, to know that about 15 per cent of the profit on your purchase goes to the Rockefeller enterprise, and is well spent.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Soulless Education.

THE truth of the assertion made by Dr. William S. Thayer, president of the American Medical Association, that "too early specialization is one of the great faults of modern American education," must be evident to everyone who has opportunity to observe the astonishing ignorance and mental apathy that prevail among "professionals" and persons educated not only in "business" schools, but in high schools, colleges and universities where preparation for life too often means only preparation for grabbing the dollar.

School days are for opening the mind on all sides and letting in the light of heaven, and not for training to gaze only through a narrow window, nor for stifling half its energies by confining all to a single line of development. What Dr. Thayer says of the medical school, viz., that "it is not the place for the teaching of specialists," is applicable to every school intended for general education. There are some extreme theorists, getting the ear of ornamental boards of education, who would like to introduce "research" into every secondary public school. Research is the proper affair of special institutions only, and if the enthusiastic advocates of its universality in education were wise they would understand that the very best and most fertile ground for starting those seeds of genius that occasionally develop into great discoveries, is that of schools where the mind receives the common sunshine from all sides. It is nature, not laboratories, that makes geniuses, and their earliest nourishment is that suited to universal humanity.

There is a growing tendency to apply the sacrosanct "technique of the short story" to the educational development of young Americans. This means leaving out everything that does not aim directly at the single denouement of the story. The denouement chosen for the young American's education (whether, the victim be male or female), is "efficiency" as a cog on the fast spinning wheel of material life. "Cut out all extraneous matter," says the short story law. And when applied to school life, it might add, in order to speak the full truth, "for thus your life will be as sapless as its story is short."

I stumbled recently upon a curious illustration of this stupid principle, which never had any justification except as a sop to the passion for technique for technique's sake. I came upon a French translation of one of Fenimore Cooper's most exquisite masterpieces of genuinely American fiction, the delightful story of "The Deerslayer," which is as truly a gem of imaginative literature as the marvelous lake on whose shores and waters the scene of the story lies was a "gem of the woods." I bought the translation, eager to see how the familiar tale would appear in a foreign language, especially in a language which it seemed to me would well express the romantic atmosphere of the original.

To my great disappointment I found that the translator had been applying the principle above described. To carry the story more swiftly he left out some of the most pleasing and brilliant descriptions and episodes of Cooper's story, things that especially warm the heart and inspire the imagination of every sensitive reader, and which surely ought to be as effective in French as in English. The consequence was that I threw the volume aside in disgust, feeling that French readers who depend upon this translation for their knowledge of our great American romancer of colonial and Indian life are getting only a dry travesty.

Many such a travesty of real life itself may result from the prevailing craze for cut, straitened, hastened, specialized and utilitarianzied education.

Don't Be an Imbecile

A FEW days of warm weather and the grass and forest fire season gets under way—and that's due mainly to human carelessness.

At least some of the forest fires each year are started directly by tobacco ashes and cigaret stubs thrown heedlessly out of automobiles.

What would you think of a man who came into your city home and threw lighted matches and glowing cigaret stubs on a floor sprinkled with gasoline or shavings? You would say that he was an imbecile criminal. In the summertime the great floor of our forests is as inflammable as if it were covered with shavings.

Remember that when you go out into the country. Don't be an imbecile with fire. In the forests, and even in the neighborhood of city vacant lots, remember the summer fire hazard.

Once Overs

Judge Him by His Mind

AREN'T you usually disappointed when you meet the person whose public work you may have admired for years?

Most always he is inconspicuous and ordinary looking.

Somehow you cannot make yourself believe he does the work accredited to him.

You wonder why it is that what he does has such an appeal?

It may be an artist's work in painting, or in music, or in newspaper work, and it gets the comment and attention.

How does that colorless individual create such rich and glowing pictures?

How can such a small and anemic creature pen thrilling detective tales?

That dark, villainous looking man with the beetling, black brows seems to breathe thunderous heavy clouds and yet paints dainty bits of landscape.

They don't look the part, but each has had his bitter with the sweet.

Each knows the troubles you have experienced, from similar personal ones.

It is expression, not features, that counts.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Just Sometimes

JUST sometimes from the drab-hued file
Of days that march along
Comes one that bears brave gifts, a smile,
A progress set to song.

Just sometimes every thought is right,
Each phrase rings clear and true,
And then a long-denied delight
Crowns all men say or do.

Not often are the days so kind,
So filled with heart's desires,
Not always does the pilgrim find
The shrine's undying fires.

Yet, since just sometimes it is so,
From such rare hours I gain
New strength and courage, for they show
My dreams not wholly vain.

Isn't It So?

Great Passages from the Bible

The Christian's Armour

(Ephesians 6; 10-18)

FINALLY, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.

Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness:

And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:

Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

SUMMER visitors don't find everything just like it ought to be sometimes. That's mostly because the tourists are tired and mad about the money they got to spend.

There was a party that had just registered at an old inn in New Hampshire, and while they were eating the landlord come around to make them feel jolly.

"This is a real old place," he says. "Everything in it goes back to George Washington or before."

"That's what I thought," says the head of the party. "This here cheese, for instance, is so old that it goes back to the chef right now."

The Soviet Policy

"THE Bolsheviks are unspeakable."

William H. Bade, the 29-year-old New Yorker who paid $217,000 for a Stock Exchange seat, at a luncheon at the Bankers' Club was condemning the policies of Soviet Russia.

"These men openly admit," he went on, "that if you establish diplomatic relations with them, their diplomats will try to overthrow your government.

"There's a story about two Bolsheviks, Trotsky and Stalin.

"'Of course,' says Trotsky, 'in our dealings with the outside world it is necessary to practice duplicity.'

"'Duplicity nothing!' says Stalin. 'Duplicity comes from the word "duc"—two—and is only appropriate to two-party dealings or double-dealing. Our policy towards the outside world must be one of multiplicity.'"

Going Too Fast

CHARLES M. SCHWAB said in a Y. M. C. A. address in New York.

"Ambition is a good thing, but in our desire to progress don't let us follow the farmhands.

"A group of farmhands waited on a farmer and their leader said:

"'We want a raise, boss.'

"'Holy smoke!' said the farmer. 'Didn't I give you a raise only four days ago?'

"'Yes,' said the leader, but we've got used to that now.'"

Didn't Satisfy

AN old darky was sent to the hospital and one of the nurses put a thermometer in his mouth to take his temperature. Presently, when the doctor made his rounds, he said:

"Well, Mose, have you had any nourishment?"

"A lady done gimme a piece of glass to suck, boss, but I's still powerful hungry."

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—People transplanted to New York from smaller cities live here many years before they acquire the real "feel" of the city—the under-currents and vital experiences of those who were born and reared here. The comparative stranger knows only the bustling life he sees about him.

He goes from his boarding house to his work and back again, meeting only those who are like himself—strangers. During off hours he visits the movies, the theaters and now and then those cafes reputed gay and patronized chiefly by visitors.

He has been accustomed to the back-fence neighborliness of his home-town and is lost without it. The born New Yorker knows nothing of this. As a consequence he acquires a self reliance. What is often mistaken for brashness is merely his natural way of enlarging his acquaintance.

Young folk especially do not stand upon ceremony. A New York youth will take an excursion boat to Coney Island, and before he is half way there, will have made the acquaintance of some girl. They may never meet again, but before they separate they are calling each other by first names.

This association is not the "pick up" adventure of the streets of a smaller city. Formality of the conventional introduction is usually impossible, and so they become acquainted as casually and naturally as a passenger takes a street car.

When a family moves in New York, even if only a few blocks away, it is the same as moving to a different city. It may be years before they see their neighbors again, and so they have by experience become adept in fitting in with new surroundings.

The born New Yorker never suffers pangs of loneliness. Nor is he ingratiating. Indeed flattery freezes on his lips. But he has an uncanny quality of making himself at home. He does not suffer from self consciousness. It is the stranger who struggles for years to realize he is only one in millions and if he wants friends he must step out and make them.

New York has its jealous side, but not so apparent as in a smaller city. A man on the upward climb here may receive a few well aimed brickbats, but when he reaches the top he finds no excitement whatever over his ascent. Too many arrived ahead of him to make it a novelty.

* * *

And curiosity here is as pronounced as anywhere, but takes an entirely different form. A skyscraper skyrockets up to the clouds and not a neck is craned, but let a pedestrian stop to hunt a penny and he will block traffic. A man putting on an extra tire will immediately have a dozen bright helpers. Movie stars, theatrical first nights or a visiting duke will bring an army of goggle-eyed to gape. Yet there is a large proportion of native population that has never seen the Egyptian obelisk in Central Park, the Woolworth Tower or have they been to Brooklyn. New York to them is just a place where they live.

* * *

A bit of tense drama that would incite a merry hoot on the stage was unfolded in real life recently in a bootlegging war. A bootlegger was called to a telephone, a feminine voice said: "You have five minutes to pray." And the receiver clicked. He stood meditating for a few minutes. Suddenly there was a bark of pistols and he fell with seven bullets in his back.

* * *

Air cooled movies are pleasant havens during torrid days, but unless you care—and who would?—to come out dripping with icicles you cannot sit through an entire performance. Back of me sat a man who had turned up his coat collar and his teeth were beginning to chatter. "If it drops two more points," he whispered to his companion, "I'm going to sell."

Motion Pictures

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Few of us realize the extent of the motion picture industry.

Recent history is crowded with instances of the rapid rise of new business concerns. Witness the telephone companies, the radio, the airship, the Ford Automobile Company, the General Motors Company, etc.

But the rise of the moving picture industry is one of the most amazing of them all.

Some of us can remember when motion pictures were strange flickering affairs shown occasionally in a little storeroom. They didn't seem to amount to much.

In a statement by Will S. Hays before the board of directors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America in New York, June 20, he said that the motion picture industry today has the largest number of consumers of any industry in America. From the amount of money invested in the business it seems unquestionably near the top of America's largest industries.

He further declared: "Our product now reaches 250,000,000 consumers per week. Our exchanges handle 25,000 miles of film per day in this country alone. Motion picture investment now exceeds two billion dollars, and the business employs more men and women than Ford and General Motors combined. Motion picture securities are in a markedly healthy state."

Not only has the business grown so large, but it is of tremendous service to all other kinds of business.

It is probably the best advertisement that America has abroad. It furnishes people with ideas of American life and affairs. It helps to sell American-made goods everywhere.

One of the most interesting developments in the last year has been the talking picture. It is probably the most discussed feature of the motion picture business among circles of that industry.

A recent picture starring Lionel Barrymore made the human voice reproduced by machinery a feature.

Whatever may be thought of this innovation it will not diminish other forms of this industry. The radio has not abolished newspapers, phonographs have not ended symphony concerts, automobiles have not entirely substituted railroads.

American movies are popular abroad not because of any special propaganda, but simply because the people want them. They are more interesting and better done. Motion pictures abroad are subsidized by the governments, but cannot compete with our unsubsidized and purely commercial enterprise.

Motion pictures made abroad are welcome. Domestic manufacture has nothing to fear from them.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

IN a New York cafe:

Overheard a woman telling a man at the table behind me that she had made a tremendous hit in her part in a play the night before.

"Why, do you know, Rita told me I looked pos—itively saintly! She said, 'Kid, you don't know how beautiful you were. Swunnaful the sweet, good, angel-like expression you had.'"

I wanted to turn and look at her because the man didn't comment. A sort of unbelieving silence, it seemed. The waiter stood in my way and I couldn't see.

She went on:

"Then Ray saw me and he told the other girls he thought I made the prettiest nun of any of them. He said, 'Kid, as a nun you are a wow!'

"Now, the others all fooled with their rosaries like they were just chains of fancy pearl beads, and I held mine with reverence, you know, like I knew what they was for."

I had to look. I couldn't wait. The man being told all this hadn't spoken, and I was consumed with curiosity.

She was undersized, pale, gimlet-eyed. She was dressed all in pure white. Her lips were thin and her finger nails jumped right out at you they were so shiny and red. You just knew that if she asked for a diamond brooch and didn't get it she would take a lace handkerchief instead and count it so much to the good. She was one of these opportunists—a Broadway philosopher.

A woman on Broadway wearing a chiffon dress, long and edged with a band of fur three inches wide. She stopped the traffic, and this (with the temperature at 90) must have been what she intended.

Saw a woman with decidedly bowed legs and a dress two full inches above her knees. Every head on Fifth avenue turned and looked at her a second time.

A Pittsburgh woman says that her husband is cruel IN SPITE of the fact that he holds three jobs. Meaning that usually wives can measure their kindness by the size of their income.

The most irritating woman I know is associated with a professional man in his Fifty-seventh street offices. She can't answer the simplest question without dragging in long, tiresome words. Whenever possible she uses words and expressions that people of ordinary education do not understand. Her one idea being to seem very much smarter than the ordinary mortals with whom she must, worse luck, come in contact.

The worse luck is theirs.

Not New

A CLEVELAND professor, inquiring among college youth, discovered that a majority prefer in the wife brains to beauty, though willing to have both.

It is probably inaccurate to call this a discovery. The preference has always been so. Certainly among young men who, themselves, have brains.
